

GREAT HUMANITARIAN GONE

Ernie Fought For Underdog Right to Last

Ernest Edward Winch, a bricklayer who became one of the most-admired members of the B.C. Legislature, died today in Vancouver General Hospital at the age of 77.

When Mr. Winch was 73, stricken by a heart attack a week ago.

He held true to that statement by working for the many charities he supported, his constituency of Burnaby, and his beloved CCF party until legislature.

Both Elected on First Attempt

They were both unemployed and on relief in 1933 when the CCF first contested an election in B.C. Father and son were elected in Burnaby and Vancouver East the first time they ran for office.

The father-son record of service was the longest in the British Commonwealth. They sat together in the legislative chamber until 1953, when Harold, resigned and later was elected to Parliament as member for Vancouver East.

Their combined 23 years and four months of legislative service easily surpassed the former record of Britain's Joseph and Austen Chamberlain. With Joseph's death July 2, 1914, a partnership of 22 years less two days in the British House of Commons was ended.

In those early days when he gave up bricklaying for social work, Mr. Winch once recalled, he had Rev. J. F. Woodsworth, founder of the federation, under a bed because he thought the RCMP were looking for him.

Born in England, Mr. Winch attended an "ordinary village school" and moved to Canada when he was 19.

Outspoken both inside and outside the Legislative Buildings at Victoria, he devoted a major part of his career to trying to get better conditions in provincial jails and mental institutions.

Working on New Plan for Addicts

Shortly before his death, Mr. Winch visited California and Texas where he studied prison conditions.

He had intended to present a plan to the legislature next month on issuing free drugs to narcotics addicts.

Mr. Winch fired criticism at anyone he thought deserved it.

"There's too many of 'em now," the white-thatched member said once in opposing plans to start medical and law faculties at the University of B.C.

He worked hard to have the Crease Clinic, a preliminary treatment centre at the provincial asylum, established. He complained bitterly at one time of conditions at Oakalla Prison Farm, vigorously opposed capital punishment, and fought for better houses for pensioners.

There was a strong bond between Mr. Winch and Harold, but they were careful to avoid treading on each other's toes politically.

He visited every hospital, jail, asylum, home for the aged and orphanage in the province and asked more questions in the House and brought in more private bills attempting to right things he considered wrong than any other member.

As the years went by, his energy didn't seem to fade. At the election last Sept. 19, when the Social Credit government returned to power with increased majorities and seats, Mr. Winch still topped the poll in Burnaby riding.

Always Fought for the Underdog

He was a great humanitarian, and always fought for the underdog. Harold was hit over the head by RCMP during the hunger marches of the 30s, and the elder Winch never forgot it. He could be harsh and biting with his criticism of the system which he did not think provided all the social services people should have.

Mr. Winch always claimed that to be a true Christian a man had to be a socialist. He made politics a crusade which he carried on for the benefit of the aged and infirm.

In addition to his fight for the constituency of Fernie, Mr. Winch was the oldest member of the legislature.

It was announced in Ottawa today that Harold had left for Vancouver by plane immediately on hearing of the death of his father.

Survivors include his widow, three younger sons, Charles and Alan in Vancouver and Eric at Parksville; two daughters, Mrs. Grace Rideout and Mrs. Cedric Cox of Burnaby.

His greatness in B.C. life probably lies in the fact that while he went into the legislature a fighting radical, almost hated by many people, he stayed to be respected as one of its senior MLAs and a kindly gentleman.

Though he never got into the seats of government, he left a lasting mark on much of the social legislation of the day.

Once Had Severe Stammer

"Ernie" was liked by all sides of the House. He had snow, white hair and eyebrows, and spoke in a high penetrating voice that revealed his Old Country origin.

He once said: "I was one of the worst stammerers in Canada. There were times when I'd get my mouth open and be unable to close it."

But he cured the stammer, and addressing the legislature held no fears for him.

In true fatherly fashion he used to sit back in his chair, preening and beaming with pride, when Harold was launched on one of his great speeches.

Outside of Tom Uphill, veteran MLA for the coal mining constituency of Fernie, Mr. Winch was the oldest member of the legislature.

Winch's Death Great Loss, Says Premier

Outstanding political leaders in B.C. today paid high tribute to Ernest E. Winch, veteran member of the B.C. legislature who died in hospital today in Vancouver.

In a voice choked with emotion, Premier Bennett spoke of Ernest Winch as "one of British Columbia's finest public servants, respected and esteemed by all parties in the House."

"In all the years I have known him he has never once taken a purely partisan attitude to any public issue. At all times he was chiefly interested in men and women in difficulties... people who had fallen on bad times... people in institutions, hospitals or penal institutions. It did not matter who or what they were, they were human beings to Ernie Winch and humanity was his first and foremost consideration."

More than once the Premier faltered and was on the point of breaking down.

"His political record by any standards was a splendid one," the premier continued.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said his passing would be deeply felt by all sides of the House and by all political parties in the province.

Health Minister Eric Martin: "His career rose above politics. He was devoted to human welfare. We shall miss him greatly during the coming session and for many sessions to come."

Former CCF provincial leader Arnold Webster said: "Ernie Winch was more than an advocate, he was a builder, and to the end he continued to work with persistence and intelligence for the great cause to which his life was dedicated."

Arthur Turner, CCF member of the legislature for Vancouver East, said: "His death comes as a great shock, and I know of no one who can take his place in public life so ably occupied by Mr. Winch for so many years."

Robert Strachan of Nanaimo, CCF provincial leader, was in Vancouver to attend a meeting when Mr. Winch died.

"It was with a sense of loss and regret that we heard of the passing of Ernie Winch," he said. "For 23 years he gave his all, not only for the CCF party but for B.C. as a whole."

"His work on behalf of our less privileged citizens, the sick, the elderly, will stand as a monument to a man who believed that a better world was possible and did his share to create that world. B.C. has lost a worker, the world has lost a citizen. All his life Ernie Winch had a cause, a worthwhile cause, and neither war nor depression could shake his belief in what was right."

The CCF leader said "although Ernie has gone, he will always remain as a living example of dedicated effort."

P. A. Gibbs, Liberal MLA for Oak Bay: "Ernie Winch passes from this world at a venerable age after a full life given unflinchingly to community service... I shall remember Ernie Winch as a man whom I believe thought and lived the Golden Rule."

EDEN

Near the top of Macmillan's agenda as he made plans for a reshuffle of the Conservative government cabinet was the question of a post for Richard A. Butler.

Butler, leader of the House of Commons under Eden, and believed in line for Eden's post, was reported willing to serve Macmillan in a similar capacity. But Macmillan was said to be toying with the idea of Butler succeeding Selwyn Lloyd as foreign secretary.

If Butler remains as government leader in the Commons, Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd is suggested as a possible man for the foreign office.

Butler said he "will definitely serve in the new cabinet, although the office I shall hold has not yet been decided."

In a recorded broadcast Thursday night, Macmillan said he is forming a government which he will present for the Queen's approval "in a few days."

He paid tribute to his "old and very dear friend, Anthony Eden," and appealed for united support.

"We have a difficult task before us," Macmillan said. "It will need all our courage and strength, and it will need the sympathetic understanding of everyone in the country, whatever their party or beliefs."

NO ELECTION PLANNED

The Labor party issued a demand for a new general election, declaring the "whole country" should "pronounce its verdict" on the changes in the political lineup.

But Macmillan replied, "no, if there was an election, we would win it." The Conservatives' term normally would not expire until April, 1960.

Macmillan, oddly, became prime minister by the workings of a strange political contradiction.

He came to power largely because he supported the cause that helped bring the downfall of Sir Anthony—the abortive Suez intervention.

STICK WITH POLICY

Most Conservatives had acknowledged it might be inevitable to sacrifice Eden to world opinion.

But they didn't want it to look as though Britain was turning its back on his Middle East policies.

Butler has been pictured all along as out of sympathy with Eden's decision to use force against Egypt.

REPORT

tions giving Canadian companies and businesses tax concessions would be implemented immediately.

The report may affect the lives of almost all Canadians. In it are forecasts of higher pay and less work for an expanded Canadian population over this next 25 years and proposals for reducing foreign influence over a growing Canadian economy.

But if the 60,000-word report were to be adopted in its entirety by all levels of government, it would mean a lot of property owners would be paying higher municipal taxes. Motorists and truckers would be paying higher licence and other fees.

And there would be an exodus of many Maritimers to other parts of Canada.

SEE LIVELY DEBATE

The 140-page report already is causing lively debate in and out of Parliament.

Some of the big features of the report, product of 18 months of study and inquiry, include several radical policies—the creation of a national energy authority to regulate exports of oil, gas and hydro, and a plan to control exports of vital minerals and metals.

The report also would have the government reduce Canada's wheat surplus by establishing marketing quotas on wheat farmers.

It would have the administration refrain from major irrigation projects for the next 10 years on the grounds they would cause further farm surplus headaches. This is in sharp contrast to Agriculture Minister Gardiner's campaign to obtain federal aid to build the controversial South Saskatchewan River irrigation and power project in South Saskatchewan.

It appears likely, Mr. Gardiner will oppose any cabinet acceptance of this doctrine.

URGES POWER EXPORT

There also is understood to be strong cabinet opposition to another commission recommendation—the export of hydro-electric power from such envisioned projects as those on the Fraser and Columbia Rivers in British Columbia and the St. John River in New Brunswick.

One cabinet source said it would be easy enough to make commitments to sell more hydro power to the United States. But it would be much more difficult to end those commitments once they were started.

The general government policy has been to restrict hydro power exports; to retain this energy primarily for Canadian benefit. But it appears the report will lead to a comprehensive review of federal energy policy. Some changes in policy may result.

Some of the commission's recommendations already are being implemented; on aid to expansion of vocational and university training, reduction of foreign control over Canadian industry and payment of full municipal taxes on federal property.

The various Gordon Commission recommendations were based on these 25-year forecasts for the 1955-80 period: Population to rise to 26,650,000 in 1980 from 15,575,000 in 1955.

While the department maintains a separate prices board, some of its officials have duties which overlap in other fields. The commission said board members should be relieved of other duties.

"Such a board should be able to develop and assemble the information required for sound decisions. It should become skilled in anticipating the occurrence of emergency conditions and in determining the effects of particular production and incomes."

FARMERS

A full-time agricultural prices support board now is maintained under the agriculture department. Supports exist for butter, pork and eggs. In some cases the board buys up the surplus when prices fall to the support level; in others it makes a payment to farmers when his selling price falls below the support.

The commission agreed that both methods should continue to be employed so that one or the other could be used in specific cases.

Mayor, Smith In Sharp Clash

Temper flared at a special meeting of City Council Thursday as Ald. Don Smith charged Mayor Percy Scurrell with premeditation in returning the trade licence issue to committee.

The mayor twice ordered him to "sit down."

The uproar began suddenly as Mayor Scurrell officially announced what everyone has known since Wednesday—Ald. Smith had resigned as chairman of the trade licence committee and Ald. Austin Curtis had taken over as chairman.

An expression of disappointment in Ald. Smith's action by Ald. M. H. Mooney brought the statement from Ald. Smith, "the fight has just started."

ALREADY DONE

Addressing the mayor he charged: "You have set up a new committee, a place to keep business tax discussions off-council. It was premeditated. You had already set it all up."

"That is not true," said the mayor.

He explained no member of council had ever expressed opposition to trade licence revision.

"That's the full story, sit down," Council, shocked into silence, ratified the new appointments and turned to the matter of wage requests.

Liberals Join Plea For Pensions Boost

(From Times News Services)

Increased old age pensions to meet rising living costs, along with higher family allowances and a better deal for veterans, have been advocated.

Liberals joined Progressive Conservative and CCF members in making the call Thursday, third day of the new session's throne speech debate.

Liberal S. R. Balcom of Halifax said the present federal old-age pension of $40 a month at 70 years of age should be increased by $10 a month. Federal-provincial old-age assistance of $40 a month to needy persons between 65 and 69 also should be raised.

Erhart Regier (CCF, Burnaby-Coquitlam) said an unconditional pension of $65 a month at age 65 should be government policy. He agreed with a government move to pay Hungarian refugees $3 a day until they got settled but said if that could be afforded so could a $65-a-month pension for the aged who now lived on about $13.32 a day.

Charles Cannon (L, Isle-de-la-Madeleine) said family allowances should be increased but he didn't specify by how much.

Dr. William Blair (PC, Lunenburg) said veterans should get a better deal. The government should give the war veterans allowance to First World War veterans who had served only in England.

At the start of the quiet parliamentary day the government introduced a resolution to set up the Canada Council which will be financed with $50,000,000 from the federal treasury to promote the arts.

John Blackmore (SC, Lethbridge) said Canadian workers are in constant fear of finding themselves out of work or unable to earn enough to buy the goods and services they need.

He reiterated his party's monetary policies which aim at the creation of credit which would be balanced against all goods and services produced.

Boost in Oil Revenues Forecast

Carl O. Nickle (PC, Calgary South) forecast that Canadian oil revenues this year will climb by about 25 per cent to some $300,000,000. Oil production, which amounted to about 509,000 barrels a day at the end of last year, had been accelerated by North American demands due to the Middle East crisis.

Mr. Nickle said the government hadn't faced up to the rail strike which was slowing wheat shipments in the west, affecting the farmer's cash position and causing unemployment. The government should restore the status quo and get the trains moving.

U.K. PAPERS SAY:

Macmillan Picked Over Butler Because of Stronger Party Ties

LONDON (Reuters)—British newspapers, crowded with news that Harold Macmillan has become prime minister, give almost equal prominence today to the fate of an also-ran, R. A. Butler.

The choice of Macmillan to succeed Sir Anthony Eden was a bitter disappointment for the 54-year-old Butler, lord privy seal and generally regarded as Eden's deputy.

But when he emerged from the privacy of his town house for evening talks with Macmillan, he said in his dry, almost pedantic way: "If my services are of value they will be at the prime minister's disposal."

Later, in less formal mood, he told a reporter: "It's not very often that you are almost prime minister."

OPPOSED SUEZ POLICY

It was Butler's name which was whispered as Eden's natural successor. But as Conservatives met in their clubs and homes, the name of Macmillan, the 62-year-old chancellor of the exchequer, was mentioned increasingly.

Arguments against Butler appeared to be that despite his high position in the party, and the fact that he is credited with shaping many of its policies, he was not acceptable to those who had encouraged or backed Eden in his policy of armed intervention in Egypt.

Butler is said to have opposed the Eden Suez policy at cabinet meetings. Macmillan supported it wholeheartedly. Butler is also thought to be too "progressive" by some party members.

IKE SENDS PRIVATE NOTE TO NEW PM

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has sent a private, personal note to Britain's new prime minister, Harold Macmillan. The White House said it didn't include an invitation to Macmillan to visit the United States.

However, presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty didn't rule out the possibility of an invitation later on.

West Europe Hails Naming Of Macmillan

LONDON (CP)—Harold Macmillan's appointment as prime minister drew generally favorable comment from Western European capitals today.

In a congratulatory telegram, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer expressed confidence that the "friendly co-operation between our two countries will in the future, too, serve the common aims of Europe and of the free world."

In France, Britain's partner in the Suez military intervention, Guy Mollet said the news was received with "great satisfaction."

ITALIANS PLEASED

A spokesman for the Italian foreign ministry said "we look with satisfaction on Macmillan's appointment."

Moscow Radio says the switch of prime ministers "holds the possibility of great political changes"—especially so if "demands of the broad masses of the British people for a change in the political course at home and abroad are taken into account."

It blames Eden's resignation on the "grave failure" of the Conservative party's policies at home and abroad, particularly the "disastrous" Suez operation.

Prague Radio declares "Great Britain's new premier has been picked out by Washington for London." The East German Radio says "the devil is to be cast out with Babelzueh."

British newspaper comment generally follows party lines. The Conservative Daily Telegraph says: "Macmillan is undoubtedly the best available choice when the first essential duty of the party is to close its ranks."

The Daily Sketch, another Conservative supporter, urges: "Get cracking, Mac! Bring in the bright boys and throw out the duds."

The Labor Daily Herald says: "Mr. Macmillan, even if he has more friends in the Tory party than Mr. Butler, is almost the worst prime minister possible."

Cheering Crowd Welcomes Chou On Poland Visit

WARSAW (Reuters)—Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China flew here today from Moscow and appealed to Poland to strengthen the Communist camp under Soviet leadership.

Cheering crowds trampled barriers at Warsaw airport in their rush to greet the stocky visitor, who arrived on a Soviet jet airliner.

In an airport speech, Chou made a slashing attack against Western "imperialism" in Hungary and the Middle East.

"Imperialism has never given up its subversive activities with regard to the Socialist states and recently intensified them still more," he said.

NEED SOLIDARITY

"In view of this, the strengthening of solidarity with the Socialist camp, led by the Soviet Union, and the solidarity of the Socialist states with all peace-loving countries and nations is of particularly great importance."

Chou, here for a five-day visit, was greeted by banners proclaiming in Polish and Chinese: "Long live the fraternal friendship of the Polish and Chinese peoples" and "we cordially greet the prime minister of the Chinese Peoples Republic."

During his visit Chou will have talks with the Polish government and Communist party, while another Chinese delegation negotiates a trade and payments agreement.

Be Certain Of Cancer, Doctors Urged

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Doctors have been carrying out too many amputations in the mistaken belief that they were dealing with bone cancer, two specialists have told the medical profession.

They cited some instances involving young people whose arms and legs, the experts said, have been sacrificed when they could have been saved by non-surgical treatment.

Bone tumors probably give the doctors the greatest diagnostic trouble, because it frequently is difficult to tell the difference between a malignant and a benign growth.

More careful examinations are needed before surgery is undertaken, they told a conference sponsored by Arizona division of the American Cancer Society.

Cancer is the leading killer of children, and bone is one of the most common sites of malignancy. There is a tendency in the profession to take no chances when doubt is present, said Dr. Vernon Luck, director of Los Angeles Orthopedic Hospital. To play it safe, the doctor too often amputates.

Dr. Luck said he reviewed a large number of bone tumor cases and found that "as many problems had been created by 'over-diagnosis' as by 'under-diagnosis.'"

Banning of Nuclear Weapons By World Powers Adenauer Plea

BONN (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today called his first press conference of the year. A "definite solution" of world problems, Adenauer said, can be attained only by the complete banning of thermonuclear weapons. "Thermonuclear weapons no longer can be considered as weapons as instruments of war, means of waging war," the 81-year-old Adenauer's statement appeared to represent a major break with the Western positions on control of nuclear weapons. He made no mention of the controls the West demands before disarming, or of the Western position that it cannot give up its strongest weapon until the Communists' overwhelming superiority in standing armies is reduced. The Communists' world long has called for a ban on hydrogen and atomic weapons but has balked on inspection and controls.

The Door Is Closed

ON NOVEMBER 28 LAST THE Federal Government announced that Hungarian refugees would be admitted to Canada without limit. That decision met with the unanimous approval of Parliament. It was approved by all the provinces. It was approved, we believe, by a vast majority of the Canadian people.

Without public announcement that policy has been quietly repealed. The door has been closed against the victims of the Russian terror. It has been closed to meet the convenience of Liberal and Conservative politicians. It has been closed to the nation's shame.

Mr. Pickersgill announced the policy of unlimited Hungarian immigration after he had sounded out the provincial governments and found them favorable. He was especially anxious to secure the approval of the Conservative Government of Ontario, the largest province and, of course, the largest factor in the approaching national election. Twenty-four hours after Premier Frost had given his blessing, the Federal Government stated that Canada would accept any refugees who cared to come here and would pay their passage.

Specifically, Mr. Pickersgill committed the Government to accept 10,000 refugees by January 31 and some 14,000 in the spring, a total of 24,000. But until a few days ago the policy of unlimited admission stood and the total of 24,000 could be expanded if more refugees wished to come here.

Then the Government, by an administrative act which was not announced publicly, ceased to grant more visas to Hungarians. There may be a few exceptional cases but for all practical purposes the figure of 24,000 represents Canada's total offer of freedom to the refugees.

Why this change of policy disguised as a mere administrative ruling? The answer will be found in the politics of Ontario.

About the middle of December Premier Frost had second thoughts. At first favorable to Hungarian immigration, he circularized the Ontario municipalities, asking for their co-operation in settling the immigrants. The municipalities were hostile or lukewarm.

Mr. Pickersgill tried to reassure them by promising that the Federal Government would pay all costs of relief or medical care for the refugees for a year. This did not change the minds of the municipal governments. They continued to object and they changed the mind of the Frost Government.

In the face of this protest from Ontario, the Federal Government suddenly stopped issuing visas to the long queues of Hungarians in Vienna. The first news of this policy reversal came from Vienna, not Ottawa.

The Federal Government does not deny that the door has been closed. It says only that Canada has done enough to relieve the Hungarian tragedy. Now, apparently, it is up to other nations to take the remainder of the refugees. Especially it is the duty of the United States which only recently agreed to extend its quota beyond 21,500.

These are lame and humiliating excuses. If other nations fail in their duty that is no excuse for failure in Canada, a sparsely populated country in desperate need of manpower. And what becomes of the brave promises issued in Ottawa less than two months ago?

We may be sure that this question is being asked not only by the refugees now crowded in the shelters of an impoverished Austria but by such crowded countries as Britain, France and Holland, which have generously accepted large numbers of Hungarians.

The politicians in Ottawa and Toronto seem to think they face merely a political problem. In fact, they face a moral problem. For if the Western democracies like Canada could not assist the Hungarian rebellion they are morally bound to relieve its victims to the maximum of their means and this they are not doing. If they continue to fail, if they break their promises, as Canada has done, who will listen when they attack the morals of Communism?

Have Municipalities a Conscience?

ALD. GEOFFREY EDGELOW, chairman of the Greater Victoria Centennial Celebrations Committee, has advanced a suggestion which should be given serious and sympathetic consideration.

He endorses the proposal to construct an addition to the Memorial Arena in order to provide more ice space for youngsters and relieve the congestion on the existing rink—at the expense of the outside municipalities.

The alderman stands on firm ground. At present the arena serves all the people of this community and the city picks up the chit.

While the residents of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt can enjoy its facilities at the same prices set for Victorians, it is left to the city taxpayers to meet the debt charges on the structure. They have no advantage over other Greater Victorians but they automatically pay more.

This is one of the glaring examples of the manner in which adjacent municipalities ride on the city's back. The alderman has pointed to one means by which the neighboring districts could provide some compensation for the ride.

He Drove Discrimination Out

ONE OF THE SPECTACULAR developments of the new year in the sports world has been the announced retirement of Jackie Robinson from baseball.

He has reportedly turned down an offer of $50,000 plus other considerations to play one year for the New York Giants to whom he was traded by Brooklyn.

The Jackie Robinson story is predominantly a subject for baseball enthusiasts. But it is much more than that. It is an important chapter in the history of the Negro to win a place in society on the basis of merit alone.

Jackie Robinson broke the taboo against his race in the major leagues.

He was the first Negro player to be signed by a team in the top echelon of his particular sport. By his performance, his sportsmanship and his general behaviour he became a national figure of high esteem.

Since he was admitted to a realm which formerly drew a color bar, many other fine Negro athletes have been accepted and have proved their merit.

Jackie Robinson struck a great blow for desegregation in his particular field—a blow by a baseball bat in highly competent hands that at the same time pushed back discrimination. His service to sports was great. His service to the cause of equality greater still.

Another Hollywood Problem Child

WITHIN A WEEK OR TWO the controversial film "Baby Doll" is expected to appear on a local theatre screen.

What it contributes to art or entertainment may be decided by the individual who views it. Before it is exhibited locally, however, it will have created another storm over indirect censorship.

Cardinal Spellman has denounced the picture from the pulpit of St. Patrick's Cathedral. The Legion of Decency (Roman Catholic) has given it a "C" (for condemned) rating. Time Magazine calls it "possibly the dirtiest American-made motion picture that has ever been legally exhibited." An Albany cinema and a New England theatre chain owned by Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador and a prominent Roman Catholic layman, have declined to book it.

In England the Roman Catholic Film Institute, British counterpart of the U.S. Legion of Decency, has reportedly found "Baby Doll" unobjectionable for adult filmgoers.

Once again author Tennessee Williams, whose stage show "A Streetcar Named Desire" stirred hostile comment, has produced another work to stand as a focal point for argument on what should, or what should not, be presented to the public.

Informed comment indicates that this is no picture for children. But if it is suitable for adults, how shall the status of adult be determined? By age alone? And where does censorship begin or end?

Safety First

FROM WASHINGTON By WALTER LIPPMANN

The New U.S. Policy

THE language of the President's address and of the proposed joint resolution is broad and imprecise. This is, one might say, unavoidable when foreign policy is conducted by means of general declarations served up with hot rhetoric. Vagueness and ambiguity are inherent in these grandiose declarations, and we must not expect them to be precise and clear. What they are meant to accomplish is at once to impress mankind and at the same time to give the Secretary of State a free hand to maneuver and negotiate. The proposed resolution speaks, for example, of "the general area of the Middle East," which is a very generalized form of words. It speaks of "any nation controlled by international communism," which leaves all the difficult questions open.

Lippmann

In view of all this, anyone studying the address is bound to pause over the following sentences. Having said that "it is my profound hope that this authority (i.e. to employ the armed forces of the United States) would never have to be exercised at all," the President then declared that "nothing is more necessary to assure this than that our policy with respect to the defence of the area be promptly and clearly determined and declared."

I have an impression that in the apparent contradiction between this insistence on a clear policy and the vague and imprecise language of the address and the joint resolution, we might find the key to what the new policy is really meant to do.

Two Points to Note
Since nothing is now "clearly determined and declared," we must suppose that the administration hopes eventually to determine clearly and declare U.S. policy for the defence of the area. Let us now note two points.

The first, which controls the whole conception, is that this is an offer by the administration to give military assistance to any nation or group of nations "desiring such assistance."

The second point is that the President intends "to send a special mission to the Middle East to explain the co-operation we are prepared to give."

The resolution would, therefore, appear to be an attempt by the President to negotiate military assistance agreements with those Middle Eastern nations which may wish to negotiate them. These agreements, which will not be treaties but in the nature of executive agreements, will then constitute a policy for the area, which is "clearly determined and declared."

This, at least, is what—subject to correction—I make out of it. It is certain that there is no clearly determined policy until the various governments of the Middle East have accepted or rejected "the co-operation we are prepared to give."

The question, then, is: What are the prospects of agreement?

They are good enough for the four nations of the Baghdad Pact, for Turkey, for Iran, Pakistan and Iraq. These nations would like the United States to join the Baghdad Pact, and this new policy could be in all but name the equivalent of the U.S. joining the Baghdad Pact. Presumably, the President's offer will strengthen the hands of the Prime Minister of Iraq and his hand now needs strengthening.

It stands to reason that Israel will jump at the chance, if in fact it is given the chance, to get a military agreement with the United States. But there is not likely to be much of an agreement with Israel until after Mr. Dulles has had a try at dealing with the hard core of the problem, which is in Egypt, Syria, and Jordan.

General Authority

As I read the official texts, what the Administration is asking from Congress is general authority to be drawn upon in negotiating with the unaligned Arab countries.

It is in Egypt and Syria primarily, to some degree in Iraq, that the Soviet Union is extending its influence. It does this largely by working upon the younger officers of the armies, offering them weapons in the hope of military power, and on the intelligentsia who run the government services. To them it offers money without strict accountability.

The American policy seems designed to help the State Department with men and with money to outbid the Russians.

If this is the purpose of the undertaking, it is, it seems to me, sound enough. But I cannot help feeling that the President has made it difficult for himself to succeed because of the rhetorical excesses of his address. For he has put the whole project in such a way that it will be very difficult for any Arab country to accept the American offer without aligning itself implacably in the cold war.

Yet what the Arab countries really want is to be neutral in the cold war. And what we really want is that they should remain neutral rather than align themselves with the Soviet Union. After the President's address it will take some explaining to make them feel that we are not asking them to make an irrevocable choice.

As Our Readers See It

Space and School Costs

Recently Mr. Golby (Chairman of Greater Victoria School Board) stated in a local paper that District 61 has built schools below B.C. average cost and in many instances below Canada-wide average.

In view of that statement might I quote from a recent annual convention of Ontario Association of Architects discussion of school costs. "Space is the most expensive thing school boards can buy in buildings. Space is single biggest item. School boards can insist on too much of it in two forms, too small a percentage of the total area of the school devoted to instruction, too much space per pupil in classrooms.

"The amount of classroom space per pupil is highly variable. In Ontario a standard of 700 sq. ft. for 30 pupils is set. In B.C. the standard is 920 sq. ft. In California 960 sq. ft. In Britain where people are not unkindful of welfare the mandatory figure is 520 sq. ft. per 30 pupils."

Assuming these figures of Ontario Architects Association to be correct maybe Mr. Golby or the School Board will state or explain before submitting the school by-law again to the ratepayers why B.C. requires 220 sq. ft. more for 30 pupils than in Ontario and why B.C. requires 400 sq. ft. more than in Britain for 30 pupils.

TAXPAYER

Let Ottawa Pay

May I be permitted to state that I heartily endorse a letter in The Times of the 7th instant, with reference to the proposed re-introduction of the School Building referendum.

Should the School Board persist in doing it they will have the biggest surprise of its existence.

The whole educational system in Canada is wrong and should be revised. Why should municipalities be called upon to build schools and educate the children? On whom does the burden fall heaviest?

How many of our youngsters remain in Victoria after school age? The majority go east to the big cities where there are greater opportunities for advancement. The education of our children benefits Canada as a whole and therefore it should be entirely a federal matter and a direct charge on the income tax revenues. Schools could then be standardized from one plan and built so they can be enlarged as required at a fraction of the cost of new schools, and all such frills as gymnasiums, auditoriums, etc., dispensed with.

Already this year the assessment on my land for school purposes has gone up 15 per cent. How high will it soar if the School Board gets its own way? Am I to lose my house because I cannot afford to pay any higher taxes?

Let us suppose for example that taxes for school purposes go to $60 a year or $5 a month, and that two families live side by side with the same frontage. One is a carpenter whose earnings average $300 a month—he pays one per cent for schools. His neighbor is a "burnt out" army pensioner struggling to live on $120 a month. If he has to pay $5 out of this he pays over four per cent.

Is this just or equitable?

NOBLE W. PIRRIE.

Outlaw Pickets

Strike-picketing should be declared a criminal offence and police and military used against it at the outset. It is nothing but interference with the liberty of the subject, with possible life-long injury or death to law-abiding individuals.

A man who hires with an employer to do certain work has the inherent right to continue with his work under the terms of his engagement, subject to economic conditions or his own or his employers' will or necessity, just as he has the right as a law-abiding citizen to enter or leave his own property or move about generally, free from gang violence or gangster molestation.

Picketing is just another form of persecution of a minority, with personal injury threatened, as centuries ago, people who would not or could not subscribe to certain creeds or dogmas were burnt at the stake or otherwise tortured.

If the CPR strike is an insidious attempt to force nationalization or complete union control on the company, then it is just latent communism showing its ruthless hand.

Unions have uses and benefits, but non-union people experience only the abuses, and their moral right to protection should also be legal and ensured.

TWO FREEMEN.

Firemen and Diesels

From The Winnipeg Free Press

RAILROAD workers are not irresponsible men. It is only fair for the public to assume that they are acting from motives which seem strong to them. But it is also only fair to ask the firemen, on their side to understand that the reason they give for striking seems inadequate even to sympathetic observers.

They say that the fireman-helper on a diesel locomotive is necessary for safety. That argument cannot convince a public which knows that every time every one of us is on a busy street or highway our lives depend on the assumption that the driver of a bus or a truck is not going to have a sudden heart-attack.

The risks involved in operating diesels without firemen are enormously smaller than the risks we all run on the roads every day.

If that were not so, the CPR would hurt itself by doing without firemen. Its business depends on public confidence in the safety it ensures for passengers and property. And there is every evidence that it is not proposing any undue risks.

To take only one example, the British railways in the region south of London have for twenty years operated one of the most intensive passenger train-services in the world—where hundreds of trains go over the same tracks each twenty-four hours—with only one man in the cab of the electrified trains.

Although diesels are only just coming into mainline service in Britain, the management of the publicly-owned railway system is already negotiating with the union to reduce the crew in the cab

Resources for the People

After reading the headlines in Victoria Daily Times, "Canada Facing Huge Losses In Gas Export Give-Away," I must say how surprised I was at your paper only just having found this out. One only had to read Hansard of last Spring to realize all this.

One cannot help but wonder when we as Canadians, will see the writing on the wall, and do some really serious thinking before it is too late, and ask ourselves:—Are we reaching the point of no return? by allowing private monopoly not only to exploit our natural gas, but indeed all our resources.

Figures show that the United States controls more than half of Canada's mining, smelting and petroleum industries. This is according to the Last Dominion Bureau of Statistics survey.

It is bad enough for the Government to be assisting private monopoly in this country under any circumstances, but, when the Government is taking steps to assist in setting up a privately owned monopoly which is controlled by a foreign country I think it is time we wake up and take action.

We, who elect these Governments must get wise to the fact that if farmers and industries are going to stand a chance; that if living costs are to be cut, our resources must have public direction. If we lose effective control of our economic destiny, how long shall we retain effective control of our political independence?

In conclusion I suggest to you Sir, that we have only two choices. On the one hand are the Liberals, Conservatives and Social Credit Parties with one kind of philosophy—Profits first to private monopoly. On the other hand there is the CCF with its basic philosophy of humanity first. We believe that the exploitation of our natural resources should have as a primary purpose: Service to the people, not profits to a privileged few.

ELVAN WALTERS.
1419 Craddock Street.

Ringed Around

Does the Canadian public realize we are ringed around by Uncle Sam's forces—North, South, East and West—thanks to the late Mr. McKenzie King's medium, who advised him not to purchase Greenland from Denmark when it was offered to us (wasn't it for five million dollars?) soon after the Depression?

The Yanks jumped in immediately and took a 99 year lease on the South portion, taking out millions of dollars worth of bauxite and building fortifications which dominate the entrance to our St. Lawrence River estuary.

Now, with their Dew Line, we are another Czechoslovakia.

Have all Canadians forgotten the Alaska Settlement? The San Juan Island deal? The State of Maine grab? The Oregon and Washington and Minnesota purloining? The "Fifty-four Forty, or Fight" jamboree.

Does the Canadian public know that The Queen Elizabeth II Archipelago, that valuable far northern chain of islands off our Arctic Coast, have never been recognized by the American government as Canadian Territory, that Washington has repeatedly refused to so recognize our sovereignty?

Is it arising out of this refusal that our members of parliament, RCMP and other state officials, have to apply to Washington for permission to cross the Dew Line when on a visit to our Island possessions down North?

"Whom the gods destroy they first make mad." Are we witnessing our own disintegration as a Nation because we lack the guts of a peanut island state, like Iceland?

Sportsmanship

Referring back to one of your editorials in which you quote our own athletic hero, Mr. Loomer, as saying it is no baloney that the spirit of brotherhood prevails at the Olympic Games, I think competition should be close. We should study methods of winning nations rather than criticize them.

However, fostering brotherhood between nations is more important than winning medals. The finest example of this was when Bannister beat Landy. After breaking away from his admirers, he not only shook hands but embraced Landy with a bear hug. All of which prompts me to suggest: Why not a flat race instead of an armament race between Khrushchev, Bulganin, Eisenhower and Dulles? They would at least get rid of some surplus wind.

PENSIONER.

How'd He Do at Christmas?

IN SOME cases from loud proclamations, in others by diligent inquiry, parents of high school students are now learning how their offspring made out in Christmas exams.

For a generation given to loud proclamation, it is astonishing how modestly reticent some can be on marks they received for certain subjects in which they did not shine. Were they to present their results in newspaper form, there would be major-headline-size type to announce grades of B or better. The type size would graduate down until it became small print among the classified ads—or didn't make the paper at all—as the averages slipped below C.

Stott

This, I guess, is completely natural, quite healthy. What may be a little surprising to parents inured to the non-report cards approved by the department of education is the fact that high school children, when pinned down, will give the actual percentages they received on different papers.

They made 75 out of 100 on this, 63 out of 100 on that. By their own grapevine they have a reasonable knowledge of where they ranked. At the top, where presumably they are brighter, they work it out in detail to announce proudly that only so-and-so beat them, or that they were third highest. At the bottom, they have a very fair idea of where they finished.

INJURED EGOS

This is a great pity. If you accept the conventional explanations of school authorities for the obscurantism of the report system, if these poor children actually know they are dragging along in the rut, it's supposed to be pretty injurious to the ego. Whether it is or isn't, they know.

It's only the parents, gazing at the letter grades, who are protected from the harsh facts in straight percentages and marks. Maybe the parents are being safeguarded against inferiority complexes. If that's the intent, the school authorities are charitable. Parents of high school students appear to need protection against the destructive assessments of their mental powers by children in grades 10 to 12.

I think parents should welcome the loud proclamation of outstanding marks. If they're so disposed, they might even reward junior—give him the last Jap orange in the fruit bowl if junior hasn't already eaten the last Jap orange in the fruit bowl. But I think, too, that parents should also dig into these little, unpublished subjects and find out where the youngster wound up, if not why he or she wound up there.

The research may be difficult. It usually is. Still, the parent, by exercising the type of genius which is an infinite capacity for taking pains, can run down the data, given time, patience and a court prosecutor's ability to ferret out facts.

INTERAGRATION TECHNIQUE

The youngster proudly announces, "I got 73 in English." You follow up with "Fine. How'd you do in math?" The reply comes back, "Math? Yeah. Pretty hard paper." "Sure," you counter, "but what did you get?" "Hm," says the kid, "math. Pretty stiff exam. You remember last Easter I was pretty low in that. Well, I'm a little better now."

"How much better?" you ask. "Quite a bit," he answers, "You remember I only got 35 last Easter. That was the time there was a note on my report card about spending a little more homework time on it. Yeah, I wasn't very good at math last Easter."

"Okay," you say, "What mark did you get at Christmas?" "This last one? Oh, you mean the mark from the last test we took? Sure. Well, it wasn't so hot. I think it was around 37 or so. Better than last Easter though."

You're not too happy as you point out that in the previous mid-term he made 62 in math.

That brightens him. "Yeah," he comes back. "I done pretty good then."

You wince and say, "Did pretty well." "Didn't I?" comes the rejoinder. "Well, anyhow, I thought you'd like to know that I made 73 in English. Don't remember too many of the other marks. Anyhow, they'll all be graded on the report card."

Funny, how these lapses of memory occur. When the reports come out, with their nice generalized alphabetic grades, you find his memory unusually retentive. If any are below C—he'll list for you the names and marks of virtually every other youngster who received less.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Injuries by Powerful Drugs

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Some 55 years ago, when I was a boy, I helped my doctor father in his office. The drugs available in that day were so weak they were fairly safe; most of them were made from herbs, and they could not do much harm. Aside from the chemicals, such as arsenic and mercury, and the poisons like strychnine there weren't many drugs strong enough to do much harm, unless they were given in enormous doses.

In my youth there came on the market the first so-called coal-tar derivatives such as Acetanilid, acetophenetidin, Antipyrin, am-idopyrine and Aspirin. Then, physicians began to run into difficulties, due largely to the hypersensitiveness of certain persons to the new drugs. Even a tablet of Aspirin would sometimes make a sensitive woman's face swell up.

Today, as we all know, the druggists' shelves are filled with powerful drugs which, in the cases of certain sensitive persons, can produce serious injury and even death. Because of this there is great need today for the exercise of caution in the use of these substances. Many should be used only in cases of great need; many should be tested at first with care; in each case their action should be watched by a physician, and always the patient should be warned to stop taking the drug the minute alarming symptoms appear. We physicians would do well never to begin by giving a patient perhaps four dozen tablets that he can take by himself without supervision. In hundreds of thousands of cases the dangerous drug should never have been given at all; it wasn't really needed. The patient would have recovered in a few days without it.

RUINED BY INJECTION

As I write this, it comes a woman who tells me her life has been ruined by one injection of a large dose of an antibiotic given her a year and a half ago for a slight cold! She promptly developed a most distressing burning of her tongue and her throat, and a terrible itching all over her body. She still is an invalid, and no medicine has helped her to recover. How much better if the doctor had given her a few tablets containing only a mild and safe sedative that could hardly have done any harm; or how much better if the woman had done like most of us doctors do with a slight cold, and had taken nothing!

Of late by brother physicians have been reading with much interest an article in the New England Journal of Medicine entitled "Diseases of Medical Progress," by Major Robert H. Moser, MC, U.S.A. He writes of diseases that came because the patient took some drug to which he had an idiosyncrasy. Among the conditions which are being produced today by the use of drugs, Dr. Moser listed a number of fairly rare diseases about which we physicians know little except that they can be very serious.

Major Moser mentioned some of the neurologic troubles which occasionally follow the use of some of the new tranquilizing drugs. Among these troubles are depressions or other mental upsets, damage to the hearing apparatus, peripheral neuritis, with pain and paralysis; paralysis of the face; a shaking palsy, habituation, and jaundice.

There are injuries to the liver produced by a number of the newer drugs. There are also the serious and sometimes fatal injuries to the blood-forming organs which cause a diminution in the number of the white blood cells, and with this, a loss of resistance to infection.

Metabolic diseases, such as gout and the formation of kidney stones, can follow the use of the new "antifolate acid compounds." By destroying large numbers of cells in the body, these drugs throw into the blood stream excessive amounts of the nucleoproteins which are fore-runners of uric acid.

CORTISONE CAN HURT

There are many troubles that can follow an overdose of cortisone, or the sudden withdrawal of cortisone after a person has taken a lot of it. Severe and even fatal peptic ulcers may follow the misuse of cortisone or cortisone-like drugs. A golfer can appear after the taking of certain drugs, such as phenylbutazone and preparations of cobalt.

There are many serious and sometimes fatal disturbances produced in over-sensitive persons by antibiotics. There are serious illnesses and even deaths due to the unwise use of large doses of drugs that lessen the ability of the blood to clot. There are often serious and even fatal reactions to the injection of serums into highly allergic persons. Disturbances in the heart beat can be produced by a number of drugs. The kidneys and the skin can sometimes be seriously injured by some of the new medicines.

The moral of all this is that laymen should not so often demand these drugs. A fine children's specialist was just telling me that nowadays he spends much of his time explaining why he refuses to acquiesce to the demands of mothers that he give their children an antibiotic for some slight infection or cold which, if left alone, will almost certainly clear up in two days.

SYNOPSIS—Another disturbance was moving out of the low-pressure area west of the Oregon coast this morning and will bring rain to much of the southern B.C. coast today and light snow to the north coast tonight. Interior sectors of the province are unlikely to be affected by this storm.

The low-pressure area is expected to remain off the coast for the next two days so that temperatures along the coastal fringe of the province are expected to remain fairly mild during that period.

In other parts of the province weather will remain cold.

Council Still in Air On Wage Hike Vote

A proposal by Ald. M. H. Mooney that a referendum be held on whether civic wage demands should be granted is still to get on city council's agenda.

Ald. Mooney said he took a stand for no increases at a special in-camera meeting of council Thursday. "But we never got to the point where I could propose the referendum," he said. He will still ask council to expend $400 for a referendum in order to gauge public

15% Pay Hike Esquimalt Police Target

Esquimalt police opened wage negotiations Thursday with a request for a 15 per cent, across-the-board pay increase.

Present scale, same as for Victoria police, gives a sergeant $370 monthly; corporal, $349; first class constable, $333; second class constable, $302; and probationer, $259—plus 10 cents a day for each five-year service star and monthly boot allowance of $1.50.

Other requests include a group insurance plan covering life and disability, statutory holidays on Easter Monday and the Queen's birthday, calling of police business discussions every six months, a 4 1/2 per cent increase in municipal superannuation, with employees paying 2 per cent and employers 2 per cent of the raise.

acceptance of the proposed wage boosts.

The city has now been asked for a total of $237,000 in pay increases.

The police union has asked $37,500, firemen $56,500, inside staff $38,325, outside workers $58,115 and public health nurses $5,000, according to city manager C. C. Wyatt.

Added fringe benefits requested brought the total to $237,000, he said.

The sum is roughly equivalent to three mills on the tax rate but is balanced to some degree by anticipated new civic revenues this year of some $200,000.

Present indications are that rising school costs, including wage demands of teachers, may be the proverbial straw which would add to 1957 taxes.

Control of Power Export By National Body Urged

Gordon Report Sets Gross National Production by 1980 at $76 Billions

OTTAWA (CP)—Establishment of a national energy authority to control export of oil, gas and hydro-electric power was proposed Thursday by the Gordon Commission on Canada's economic prospects.

The royal commission's preliminary report, tabled in the Commons by Prime Minister St. Laurent said the authority would advise federal and provincial governments on long-term energy requirements in all parts of the country.

It also would advise on best uses of energy sources, on export policy including the question of increased refining of oil and gas in Canada and disposal of by-products, and on such questions as coal subsidies.

The report recommended that the authority approve all contracts or other arrangements for the export of gas, oil or electric power. Where necessary, public hearings should be held to discuss contracts.

The authority would assume responsibilities of the Dominion Coal Board which advises the government on coal policies and subsidies.

"SOUND POLICY" AIM. The report said the authority would enable a "sound and comprehensive policy" to be worked out for "development, exports, imports and consumption of all forms of energy in Canada."

It forecast that consumption of all forms of energy will increase steadily during the next 25 years. However, the rate of increase will be slower than the rise in the gross national product, expected to jump from $36,800,000,000 to about $76,000,000,000 by 1980.

Limited Export of Power

The report recommended limited export of hydro power to the U.S.

In some areas of Canada efficient development of a large hydro project may require that it be designed to produce more power than the area can absorb, the report said.

In such cases "there seems to be merit in permitting some part of the power from such a large new project to be exported where possible at economic rates for stated periods of years, after which it would be made available

Would Change Gov't Policy

The suggestion for export of hydro power would be changed from present policy to restrict exports and conserve electric energy for Canadian use.

Trade Minister Howe told the Commons in February, 1955, that this policy is one of "no firm commitment for power." He said export licences should be issued "on a surplus interruptible basis only and that they should be reviewed annually."

Capital expenditures on hydro-electric installations over the next 25 years may amount to between $15,000,000,000 and $20,000,000,000. Net value of output in 1980 may be four or five times as great as in 1955. No figures were given.

"With the costs of large hydro installations so very great, and the difficulties of financing them correspondingly imposing, it is increasingly clear that before these projects can be undertaken and financed immediate markets must be available for the power it is proposed that they will generate."

The most striking single fact about the forecasts of Canada's steadily mounting energy requirements was that by 1980 between two-thirds and three-quarters would be met by oil and gas. On balance Canada would be more than self-sufficient.

Oil output by 1980 was expected to be 10 times that of 1955 and between 1½ and twice anticipated requirements. For gas the potential output likely would be 15 times 1955 production, and about 50 per cent more than expected domestic requirements.

"This means that there will be large quantities of oil and gas available for export. If we continue to import oil into Quebec and the Atlantic provinces, (from the U.S. and other countries) the quantities available for export now in terms of money available for own use.

A threefold increase in gross national product — to $76,000,000,000 — by 1980. A decline in agricultural output to six per cent of total economy, from 12.

Percentage of women in labor force to increase by almost four per cent, men to drop by two per cent. Labor force in agriculture to decline to seven per cent, from present 15. Skilled labor shortage to worsen.

More Canadians to be town-dwellers by 1980—80 per cent, against 62 in 1951. Unified municipal governments to cover larger urban areas. About $200,000,000,000 to be spent on housing and municipal services by 1980.

Petroleum and natural gas to provide up to three-quarters of Canada's energy requirements by 1980. Nuclear energy to play only modest role in power needs until then. Activity in coal industry to decline.

Forest production to double by 1980, also the demand for Canadian newsprint. Mining, smelting and refining output to increase at faster rate than gross national product. Yield from resources — mining, gas, oil, electricity — to increase to 15 per cent of national economy from present 10.

Secondary manufacturing such as automobiles, electrical apparatus and other "end products" — to rise to 25 per cent of national economy from present 20. No increase in exports of manufactured goods.

A decline in numbers engaged in deep-sea fishing, and in centres in which the industry is concentrated. An increase in the domestic market for fish.

University enrolments to double.

Maritimers Get Short End, Probers Say

OTTAWA (CP)—A suggestion that Maritimers move to other parts of Canada to better themselves economically is contained in the report of the Gordon Economic Commission.

The suggestion is made in three places in a special chapter devoted to the Atlantic provinces. It is the only region in Canada dealt with separately in the report.

In 1955, the average per capita income in the Atlantic provinces—Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland—was 37 per cent below the average for the other six provinces.

The commission says that if there are not enough resources on the eastern seaboard to permit a substantial rise in living standards here, "generous assistance" should be given to those people who might wish to move to other parts of Canada where there may be greater opportunities. It adds:

"MANY WILL STAY"

"But even if assistance is provided for those people who might be willing to move elsewhere, many people undoubtedly would prefer to remain where they are despite the handicaps referred to. People who so choose should at the same time be prepared to accept a lower level of income, though not necessarily a lower standard of living in its broadest sense, than people in certain other parts of Canada."

The report said that nuclear energy will play only a modest role in Canada's energy program during the next 25 years. Electricity may be produced from atomic power on an economic basis by 1970 but it was not expected to contribute more than four per cent of energy requirements by 1980.

The first areas to be served by atomic power likely would be Southern Ontario and the Maritimes. But because of the abundance of other forms of energy it would not be an important factor in Canada as soon as it will be in other countries, including Britain.

The commission said coal is progressively declining as a source of energy. Production might increase during the next 25 years but by then it was expected to account for less than one-sixth of all energy consumed, compared with about two-fifths in 1953 and more than two-thirds in 1938.

SEE COAL TREND DOWN Because of large supplies of oil and gas in Western Canada, demands for coal from underground mines in this section of Canada will continue to decline. However, strip mines should continue to be active in areas where hydro-electric power resources are limited.

"There may continue to be difficulties in relocating Alberta and British Columbia coal miners and re-establishing them in other industries," the report said. However, buoyant employment conditions in the West and assistance granted by provinces had so far prevented the problem from becoming acute.

But the deterioration of the coal mining industry in the Maritimes was a continuing cause for concern.

GORDON REPORT NOT BINDING OTTAWA (CP)—The dozens of recommendations made by the 60,000 word Gordon royal commission report on Canada's economic prospects will not necessarily be implemented at once. Some may take years to be put into effect and others may be rejected by the federal, provincial and municipal governments to whom they are directed.

But the federal government, which had an advance look at the commission's interim report, which took 15 months to complete, issued Thursday already has announced plans to implement a few of its proposals.

"A great deal is said from time to time about further processing of minerals, metals and other materials in Canada. Certainly it is desirable that no opportunities for doing so should be overlooked, but we should always remember that Canada's customers in other countries usually have other sources of supply available to them."

"If, for instance, obstacles were placed in the way of exporting iron ore from Canada in the form of ore, the steel companies in the United States, who are the principal customers for Canada's iron ore, could probably fill their requirements somewhere else."

"There may be sound arguments and better opportunities for refining a greater percentage of certain metals—for example, nickel, lead, zinc, titanium and perhaps uranium—prior to export, but each situation requires careful study on an individual basis before any such conclusion would be justified."

PERMITS ADVISED "As a way in which to come to grips with this problem, there might be some merit in requiring exporters of ore, concentrates and other semi-processed commodities to obtain export permits which would be good for a stated number of years. Each case should be examined carefully and individually."

"New mines, for example, could be given every opportunity to get under way and into production. But it could be made clear that the circumstances in each case would be re-examined at stated intervals and that exporters would be expected over the years to do more processing in Canada..."

NEEDS INVESTMENT 3. Greater capital investment, either from within the industry or through government assistance, enabling the industry to take advantage of technological developments.

"By 1980," says the report, "it is estimated that the total number of fishermen will drop by one-sixth."

"With strong market demand both in Canada and the United

TAX CHANGES TO HELP GAS, OIL FIRMS URGED

OTTAWA (CP)—The Gordon Economic Commission Thursday recommended changes in the tax treatment of Canadian gas and oil companies which would bring them closer to the tax benefits enjoyed by the United States companies operating in Canada's oil fields.

But it says Canada should not necessarily copy the generous U.S. tax laws which had encouraged "a world-wide search for oil" by Americans and helped bring about Canada's great oil and gas development.

The commission's proposals to the government are complex.

But if carried out their effect would be to make it easier for Canadian gas and oil operators to benefit from depletion allowances in paying income tax. The Canadian operators also would be enabled to deduct the capital cost of acquiring unproductive property as a tax-free expense.

Fewer Fishermen Higher Incomes Seen by Gordon

OTTAWA (CP)—The domestic demand for fish will increase between now and 1980, says the Gordon commission on Canada's economic prospects, but the number of fishermen will decline. So will the number of centres in which the industry is based.

The commission said in its 140-page report to the government that fishing and fish-processing now account for less than one per cent of the Canadian economy's total output and employ only one per cent of its labor force.

The report dealt with coastal fishing only, noting that the industry is exceptional in that "much of the abundant resource on which it is based is located outside the territorial limits of Canada."

Its main recommendations for the industry's growth:

1. Negotiations to remove or reduce barriers to international trade in fish—necessary since two-thirds of the industry's production is exported.

2. Re-examination of Canada's doctrine on territorial waters, removing inconsistencies which in one area allow foreign vessels to fish closer to the coast than many Canadian vessels.

3. Greater capital investment, either from within the industry or through government assistance, enabling the industry to take advantage of technological developments.

"By 1980," says the report, "it is estimated that the total number of fishermen will drop by one-sixth."

Wheat Marketing System Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — Control of Western wheat surpluses through establishment of annual marketing quotas by the Canadian Wheat Board was recommended by the Gordon Economic Commission.

The report also proposed farmers be paid for farm-held wheat within the quotas.

Urging that the wheat board system of marketing wheat be continued, it said this method is "well accepted and established." A "majority opinion was strongly in favor of continuing it."

There appeared to be little evidence to support the contention that more Canadian wheat would be sold if the free-market system were re-established.

The commission recommended that the surplus of wheat be sold for specific grades.

Would Pay Minimum Price

In this event, the board would be required to pay farmers the guaranteed minimum price for wheat within the quotas still on farms.

Board payments now are made only when the wheat is delivered, and the board also maintains delivery quotas. However, there are no restrictions on the amount of wheat a farmer may grow.

He eventually may get the surplus on his farm delivered, but he receives no advance payment for farm-held grain, though farm bodies have repeatedly asked for such a concession.

Under the proposed arrangement, the board would make no commitment in advance either as to the price it would pay or the time it would purchase any quantities of wheat over and above the initial guaranteed quantity. However, the board still would be required to purchase all such additional quantities at later dates.

"The quantity of wheat which the board would guarantee to accept should be broken down into guaranteed delivery quotas for each farmer who holds a wheat delivery permit," the report said. "To begin with, the delivery quota for the individual farmer might be based wholly or in part on his previous production records."

Under the proposed method, farmers would know in advance that if there were another very good crop only a stated part of it could be delivered in the coming year.

The balance would have to be stored on the farm or used for feed. If such a situation continued farmers would tend to reduce their wheat acreage to some extent and achieve a better balance between supply and demand.

The commission's proposal amounts to an alternative to official acreage restrictions. The report added there is no evidence to support the contention that a permanent reduction in wheat acreage is necessary in Canada.

The present wheat surplus, it said, results primarily from weather conditions and has not arisen from marketing procedures. The 1956-57 period had been more favorable to wheat yields than any similar period in history.

However, the limited commitment suggested would not remove the board's responsibility for the eventual marketing of all wheat produced. It would reduce the degree of commitment in a period when supply was clearly in excess of anticipated demand.

Forest Production To Be Doubled, Boost Seen in Newsprint Demand

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian forest industry will nearly double production in the next 25 years, the Gordon economic commission estimated today. Gross value of forest production in 1954 was $2,500,000,000.

It was anticipated, however, that the proportion of 1980 production which will be exported will be slightly smaller than the present proportion. Exports of forest products in 1980 would constitute only about one-quarter of total Canadian exports compared with 35 per cent in 1955.

The commission in its report to the government, tabled in the Commons today, also estimated that demand for Canadian newsprint in 1980 should be about double what it was in 1955.

U.S. demand for Canadian newsprint would be only half again as large as it is now but other foreign demand would increase four-fold and domestic demand would more than double.

More than 90 per cent of Canadian newsprint production now is exported and more than 80 per cent of these exports go to the U.S.

Total cut of wood in Canada probably would increase by about 60 per cent by 1980. There was sufficient supply to meet requirements but the relative remoteness of timber reserves from established industries left Canada in no position to waste its forest resources. The commission said: "The future development of the Canadian forest industries rests in large part on their ability to maintain their competitive position in world markets. This means that there must be deep and constant concern about competitive costs. Improvement in forest management practices is essential if future wood supplies are to be obtained at competitive prices." It was extremely important that producers have access to the most advanced technological developments in utilization and processing.

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

BY

Denny Boyd

They threw away the mould when they had finished putting Phil Watson together, and the fiery, phlegmatic coach of the New York Rangers remains a gaudy island in the sea of National Hockey League characteristics.

Phillipe Henri Watson is a head-on collision of calculating intelligence and French Canadian temperament.

As crafty as a chess master in his handling of players, Watson is one of the biggest blow-tops in the NHL and when he erupts the surrounding area becomes coated with a fall-out of seething anger.

Lynn Patrick was talking about Phil at Memorial Arena the other night.

"Phil is a remarkable thinker," Lynn was saying. "He has great intelligence for attacking problems and for getting things accomplished. But he is erratic and blows up completely when things are going wrong."

Lynn is an expert on Watson, having played on the same line with him with the New York Rangers and having engaged in some rousing insult-tossing bouts with the Ranger coach in more recent times.

Leaf's Exploited Phil's Temper

"When Phil and I played on the same line together, the Toronto Maple Leafs used to stop us every time. The Leafs had a forward called Bob Davidson, who never scored more than three or four goals a season but was a great checking forward. They used to send him out to needle Watson. Davidson would give Phil the elbow and keep riding him. Every time, Watson would start tossing punches and get tossed out of the game and that would ruin our line.

"As soon as the game was over, Watson would see how they tricked them and would sit in the dressing room beating his fists against his head and cussing himself out for a dough-head. But the next time we played the Leafs, the same thing would happen."

Described as "the angriest coach in the business," Watson will lock himself in his office after a loss and brood silently for two hours at a stretch.

The greatest compliment he ever gives his players is to say nothing about them. When he is dissatisfied with a player's performance, he announces his feelings in flaming, foot-high letters.

He is a whip-waving task-master who insists on all-out performance at all times.

Andy Recalled Phil's Stunts

When Andy Heberton came back to Victoria last summer after a great rookie season with the Rangers, he said, "Some times after a practice, we would be so tired we would sit down right on the ice until we had the energy to go to the dressing room."

Andy also told of a stunt employed by Watson to discourage friendships between Ranger players:

"Phil used to switch our room-mates periodically. He didn't want any of us to become too chummy. The idea was, if a guy got traded in mid-season and played with another club, none of us would think of him as an old friend and neglect to hit him."

Tommy Bolt breaks clubs and swears horribly at little golf balls; Ted Williams kicks water coolers and spits at fans and many a football coach has, in moments of high temper, torn out tufts of hair.

But, for day-in, day-out anger, they can't beat Phil Watson, the angriest man who ever blew a gasket.

Brentwood Hoop Card

Schedule of basketball games at Brentwood Community Hall tonight follows:

7.30—Brentwood vs. Sooke, pre-midnight boys; 8.30—Brentwood vs. Sooke, bantam boys; 9.30—Brentwood vs. St. Louis College, juvenile boys.

LOS ANGELES—Larry Bataan, 124½, Philipines, and Billy Peacock, 123, Los Angeles, drew 30.

FOUL BAY BOXLA VETERAN WILL BE READY

Macdonald Applies for Ref Job

Alex Macdonald never believed in doing things by halves.

So, although the Intercity Lacrosse League season isn't due to start until May, several Foul Bay residents have been startled in recent weeks by a slim, lonely figure trotting along the darkened streets.

Alex isn't part of the intercity loop yet. But he hopes to be after the league holds its annual meeting, tentatively scheduled for Jan. 25.

He has applied for a referee's berth and his application will be backed by Victoria Shamrocks.

"First of all, you've got to be in shape to be a good referee," said Alex. Hence the nightly pavement-pounding, which he believes will round him into top condition by the time referee tryouts are held.

"If I've scared some people," he chuckled, after finishing his jaunt Thursday night, "it's nothing compared to the way some of those big dogs scare me."

During 10 years as coach of the Foul Bay Senior "B" lacrosse club, Macdonald has had his share of trouble with referees. But he thinks he has learned to appreciate the problems facing boxla officials and that the coaching term will help him interpret rules correctly.

Although he never played lacrosse, Alex coached his club to 10 straight league championships in the city senior "B" loop, but he never managed to collect a provincial title. Three times the Bays lost out in league play-offs, three times they were ousted in coast playdowns, and in four of the past five years they reached the B.C. final, losing twice to Rossland and once each to Kelowna and Vernon.

Alex probably knows the rule book by heart. But he's taking no chances and is burning the midnight oil over the book so he'll have ready answers for either the examining board or excited players when the time comes.

He knows his chances of success also hinge on his being able to keep up with the play and his ability to keep control of each game. And he realizes it won't be an easy job. "But," he said, "I'd

Hab Fans Riot Again; Ref, Campbell Targets

Canyens Nip Toronto; Take Over NHL Lead

MONTREAL (BUP) — Ronnie Marshall's whirling back-hand shot with six seconds left gave the Montreal Canadiens a dramatic come-from-behind, 2-1 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs Thursday night in a wild and woolly contest that nearly broke into a riot.

Puck Feud Goes Into Round Five

Hockey fans who tend to become squeamish about their evening bill of fare at Memorial Arena, just might be better off seeking a more subdued type of entertainment tonight.

For, starting at 8.30, round five of the great Seattle-Victoria Donnybrook gets under way. Translated loosely, this will be a Western Hockey League game between the Cougars and the Americans from Seattle.

The last four meetings between the two clubs have degenerated into near-riots, recriminations and name-calling. Seattle is at the top of the WHL's coast division and Victoria at the bottom, making for hard feelings all-around.

NO CHANGES
Cougars coach Colin Kilburn will plunge into the fray tonight with the same lineup that has precipitated a budding two-game winning streak.

George Ranieri, who broke up Monday's game against Vancouver in the nick of time, will again patrol right wing on the line with Gordie Haworth and Bruce Carmichael. Other forward combinations will be Wayne Brown-Don Chiupka-Larry Leach, and Kilburn-Doug Anderson-Doug Macauley.

Lionel Heinrich, Arnot Whitney, Bill Davidson, Bill Dobbey and Nelson Bulloch will be the five defencemen in front of goalie Marcel Pelletier.

Cougars, whose big, 4-2 victory over Canucks Monday kept them in the thick of the fight for third place, will find tonight's encounter just as important. Third-place New Westminster Royals, three points up the ladder from the Cougars, meet the Canucks in Vancouver tonight, and the Cats need a win over the pesky Americans in order to stay within panning distance of the last playoff spot.

This could be arranged Saturday night when the Cougars travel to New Westminster. A win tonight plus a Royal loss would set the stage for a Victoria surge into third place.

Bill Hemmingsen Drakes' President

Bill Hemmingsen has been elected as president of the Oak Bay Drakes of the Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football Union for the 1957 season. He succeeds Jim Brownlee.

Mort Graham was retained as team manager of the 1956 Western Canada finalists, while Don Hendry was elected treasurer and George Dunlop, secretary.

Jack Patrick and Cec Taylor, who took over coaching duties in mid-season last year, will again handle the team on the field.

City Pucksters Join 'Young Canada Week'

Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will sponsor Young Canada Hockey Week across Canada Hockey Week across the Dominion Feb. 4-11.

For Victoria, minor hockey night will be Feb. 11 at Memorial Arena.

The purpose of Young Canada Hockey Week and the various minor hockey nights across Canada is to acquaint the public with the flourishing minor hockey setup in the various cities and to pay tribute to the men who give time and effort to help young hockey players.

Organizer for the Pacific Coast during the week is Victoria's Ivan Temple. Besides Memorial Arena's 300 youngsters, Vancouver's 350 budding stars; New Westminster, 425; Nanaimo 195; Powell River, 250; and Capilano Winter Club, West Vancouver, 250.

Officials expect Victoria's minor hockey night to be the biggest yet.

There will be five games, featuring players of every division of the Greater Victoria Minor Hockey Association. First game will be at 7 p.m. between two bantam all-star teams, followed by a flyweight (10 years and under) game at 7.40.

After official opening ceremonies at 8.15, the peewees see action at 8.30, followed by a Victoria-Nanaimo all-star game at 8.15, and junior and juvenile all-stars at 10.15.

Several civic dignitaries are expected to be on hand, and an imposing list of prizes will be given away during the evening. A band will be in attendance. Tickets may be obtained from any GVMHA official.

FARMERS FALL SHORT

Fuelers Grab Playoff Spot

Rose Fuel and Farmer Construction returned to normal levels Thursday night in the second game of the two-game, total-point series to decide the fourth playoff team in the Senior B Men's Basketball League.

Farmers climbed out of the deep slump that had mired them Tuesday to edge the fuel squad, 52-50, but dropped the series by 17 points.

Playing at Victoria High School, the Fuelmen couldn't scale the dizzy heights they attained while thumping Farmers, 63-44, to gain a 19-point lead in Tuesday's series opener.

In a preliminary exhibition game, John Clark potted 21 points to lead Dickinson & Dunn to a 68-55 victory over Morrisons.

Farmers sliced the series deficit to 14 points as Leroy Bond tossed in 11 points to pace them to a 29-24 lead at the intermission.

Lanky Paul Simpson kept Rose Fuel out of danger in the second session, dunking 12 points as the Fuelmen outscored their opponents, 26-23.

Doug Peden OUTDOOR REPORT

Time brings changes in many things. And one of the biggest changes on the outdoor front has been the increasing interest in winter fishing.

It doesn't seem many years since most of the winter fishing was done by a small band of old regulars. I can remember seeing fewer than 10 boats out on Saanich Inlet on a sunny January Sunday and Stan Williams was recalling the other day when only five or six anglers normally shared the weekend steelheading on the Cowichan River.

On most recent Sundays, the boats on the Inlet and the spinning rods at the Cowichan could be counted in the dozens. Helped by mild weather, anglers at Saanich Inlet have been enjoying one of their better winters. The run of spring salmon that added a lot of spice for a few weeks has eased off, but there are still a few springs around and limit catches of grilse and bluebacks have been common this week.

Inlet fishing has been good enough that usually-favored topics are often taking a back seat. At Monday's hockey game, Ken Darbyshire spent more time discussing the scrappy blues that he was grabbing his bucket flies than he did telling of the new colt he purchased in California. And Bill Garner, waiting at the timer's bench during Tuesday's basketball game, was as eager to extol the limit-taking virtues of blue-and-white bucktails as he was to take his turn on the floor.

Abalone spoons, Kam-Lures and bucktails have been the most productive lures at the Inlet, but up at Crofton, where a good part of a huge run of bluebacks is still around, the Super Duper lure has been the big killer.

Cowichan Bay has been a hot spot for grilse, bluebacks and jack springs in recent days, which gives some anglers hope that there will be a repeat performance of the big run of fish that arrived at Saanich Inlet in mid-January last year. Steelheading is always a gamble. Stretches of water which yield good catches one day are often empty of fish the next, or the ironheads may ignore all offerings. However, reports indicate that the best part of our steelhead season is here.

Rivers in the Alberni district appear to offer the best chances of tangling with a steelhead. The Stamp, Sprout, Ash and Smead rivers and China Creek all rate as good bets.

On the east side of the Island, the Cowichan, Nanaimo, Little Qualicum, Puntledge, Englishman, Quinsam and Campbell rivers are classed as fair and are worth a try.

Little has been heard from the Sooke and San Juan rivers, but at this time of year they should be harboring some steelies.

Things have been fairly quiet on the Cowichan this week but Jack Young and Bob Bell each managed to beach two steelheads. Best area appears to be in the river bottom around Cedar Log Pool, Beans Pool or the old Stoltz bridge but there is good reason to expect a new run and pools by the White and Silver bridges could be good by Sunday.

Trollers and spin-fishermen using small spoons have been taking a few trout from some of the lakes, including Great Central, Sprout, Dog (Summit) and Cameron. Near Victoria, Elk Lake is always a possibility. You probably won't take many trout from the Elk, but the fish usually average around three pounds.

Annual meeting of the Victoria Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will be held at Club Sirrocco Monday night at 8.

In addition to naming a new slate of officers, members will be asked to vote on new by-law proposals and a recommendation to revise the constitution.

Several anglers have been asking why the access to Rogers (Dougans) Lake has been blocked off.

The lake lies partly on Indian reserve land and partly on private property. In 1939, access to the lake through reserve land was granted. This access was included in original surveys for the new highway but, by mistake, was omitted in the latest survey.

The B.C. Game Commission has taken the matter up with the Highways Department and hopes to have the access restored this spring.

In the meantime, those travelling on reserve property to reach the lake should possess a permit issued by the Indian agent at Duncan and costing $2. The same permit will allow the holder to fish from the Indian reserve at the mouth of the Cowichan River. The permit does not give hunting privileges.

POISONALLY, THINGS COULDN'T BE WOISER

Jacobs' Beach Morns

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) The sands of Jacobs Beach were inundated today by the tears of the fight mob following a series of events which fractured the arches on every pair of blue suede shoes in Cauliflower Canyon.

In the busiest, and blackest, 24-hour period since the last 5-to-1 shot was beaten in a breeze, boxing reeled under these discouraging developments:

1. Iceland banned boxing.

2. Jake LaMotta, the Bronx Bull, was arraigned on a morals charge after allegedly mixing in among the calves.

3. Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, a writer and/or fighter of little note, was arrested on charges of forging his driving licence.

4. Mid dlieght champion Gene Fullmer refused to fight Ray Robinson in March because it will be the mink mating season on his manager's Utah ranch.

5. Carmen Basilio, the welter king, "hoisted" his hand and thus defied his bout with Johnny Saxton.

"Now that there Iceland bit," argued Mushky Jackson, an impromptu wake was held, "might maybe set a president. Poisonally, I never go to Iceland, being a Rose-land man myself, but imagine

If the news of this gets to Jolley."

Heads wagged solemnly. Mushky, at times being somewhat of a promoter "across" the Hudson. Then the voice of Murray (The Memory) Goodman filtered through.

"It's gotta be a bum rap on Jake," quoth The Memory, a boxing publicist whose files are in his head.

"And don't youse guys think it's a bum rap on the Hurricane, too?" demanded Mushky (The Owl) McGee.

"It just so happens that poisonally I happen to know that he is no Rumboldt with a pen, nor not even with a pencil."

The gloom thickened as they considered the ways of guys and gendarmes. Then came the voice of Manny, The Musician, somewhat of a celebrity because he plays a mouth organ with his nose.

"Nor not even any fights," moaned Manny, tapping his harmonica listlessly against the palm of his hand. "Basilio has to bang up his pinky and who knows what the price will be the time he's ready to go again."

More nods. More gloom. And the steel-on-concrete voice of Murray, The Memory, came through again.

"It's woiser," he said, "than the day one of my bums takes a dive without never tellin' me foist."

Where Was Chess Invented?

Chess has been played for wonderful game has been played hundreds of years. A good deal of time has been spent on tracing the history of the game. Some of the theories set forth about its invention have been very fanciful and exaggerated. There are some people who say it started 4,000 or 5,000 years ago. And there are various arguments that it began in Persia, Rome, India, Greece, Egypt or Babylon.

The reliable clues about the history of chess are hidden in old letters, documents and other records of the past. For instance, we know that chess was played in Europe some 900 years ago. In a letter of 1061, a certain bishop is scolded for wasting too much time at the game. In 950, an Arabian writer named Masudi wrote of the chess played in his day. He compares it with the chess games played by generations before his time. Sorting these facts is a tedious job. What's more, though it may prove that chess was played 1,000 years ago we are not certain how long before this time it was played. Though we have no proof, it is likely that the Persians learned chess from the Hindus. They changed the game somewhat and named the pieces to suit themselves. The word chess may come from their word shah which means king. Chess is the king's game. Check mate, which is what you say when you fix your opponent's king and win the game, may come from shah-mat, meaning the king is dead.

The Arabs are responsible for taking the game of chess to Spain. The rest of Europe may have learned it from the Spanish Moors or they may have learned it when they went east on the crusades. In any case, by now the wonderful game is played all over the world and everyone agrees to play it by the same rules.

Singers are invited to swell the ranks of the choral group for the epic work and also to take part in a performance of Bach's "Passion According to St. John" to be presented later in April.

Rehearsals begin in the Christ Church Cathedral Memorial Hall Tuesday at 7.30 p.m. Auditions may be arranged with Mr. Steed. Music will be supplied.

Protest to CBC On TV Problem Residents Plan

A public meeting to discuss a petition to the CBC protesting interference to channel 5 by channel 6, CHEK-TV, will be called within the next two weeks by the Saanich Voters' Association.

Fred Rawlings, association president, assured a group of residents in the area around the local TV station, that a meeting will be called to discuss the interference problem.

Residents who are protesting against interference to channel 5 by the local station, have appointed P. C. McEwan, 3208 Frechette; E. W. Langston, E. M. Wilkinson and E. A. Crane to act as their spokesmen at the public meeting.

The residents will submit a petition to the meeting supporting CHEK-TV's announced intention to move its transmitter to Salt Spring Island. This move, it is said, would end interference with channel 5.

2 Men, Woman Hurt In Auto Crashes

Two men and a woman were taken to hospital for treatment of injuries suffered in two traffic mishaps on streets in Saanich and Oak Bay Thursday.

Admitted were Mrs. Gladys Mason, 1325 May, who suffered shock and serious bruises when her small car collided with an oil truck at 2 p.m. at Fort and Foul Bay, and Donald MacKinnon, 38, 1547 Yale, passenger in a car which overturned down a 12-foot bank on Douglas near Vanalman about 7 a.m.

MacKinnon is being treated at St. Joseph's for a fractured shoulder and his condition is good.

ICE BLAMED

Ice on the highway was blamed for the accident which sent MacKinnon and the driver of the car in which he was riding, Thomas M. Fieka, 1003 Russell, to hospital.

A car driven by Hans M. Myhre, 610 McKenzie, was proceeding north on Douglas when the Fieka auto attempted to pass, skidded on the ice and locked bumpers with the first car, police said.

The two vehicles plunged over the bank, both overturning.

Child Saved After Eating Rat Poison

VANCOUVER (CP)—A deadly poison intended for rats that threatened an infant child almost caused the death of the baby's two-year-old sister Thursday afternoon.

Tiny Ollie Fisher of 884 West Sixth Avenue went into convulsions minutes after she swallowed lowed poison-smeared bread her mother had placed near a rat hole.

Mrs. Mildred Fisher, 25-year-old mother of three, instantly recognized the color of poison on the child's breath and administered an anti-dote prescribed on the poison container.

PHYSICAL FITNESS TESTS FOR 2,000 STUDENTS

Two thousand Greater Victoria school students, in a cross section extending from grade one to grade 12, will receive special physical fitness tests between now and the end of February.

A meeting of the Victoria branch, Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation Tuesday night completed plans for preliminary tests to begin immediately.

Purpose is to measure abilities of West Coast Canadian youngsters against children in the United States and parts of Europe.

The tests, known internationally as the Kraus-Weber tests, proved in 1954 that American children are less muscular than their counterparts in Italy and Austria.

Results were so astonishing President Eisenhower ordered special committees to give the matter more study.

The association which will conduct the test here is comprised of physical education teachers of local schools. It will work in co-operation with district 61 school board.

CAHPER chairman of testing is Fred Martin, Victoria College instructor.

In European tests, 8.2 per cent of the children failed at at least one test, compared to 56.6 per cent of the American children tested.

Described as minimum muscular fitness tests, they measure abilities which the originators feel are necessary to all persons to live a happy life.

Testing is to be carried out during regular physical education periods whenever possible.

The instructors who will administer the tests are now undergoing preparation and training with experimental groups so that statistics recorded will be based on uniform procedures.

Results will be announced when the tests are completed.

BETWEEN TIMES

By

MONTE ROBERTS

One of the things I have always wanted to do but never had enough nerve to do is wear a cane.

You will notice I did not commit the gaucherie of saying "carry" a cane.

I said "wear" a cane.

This goes to show how much thought and study I have put into the matter.

The man who wears a cane, I have always felt, is the man who will go far in this world.

Wearing a cane does even more for one than wearing a dark homburg hat, a Schweppesian beard, or Elvis Presley sideburns.

A man who wears a cane is obviously master of his own fate; capable of sweeping aside obstacles on the road to success with the same ease he slashes the head off a dandelion; and what's more, he is never at a loss for what to do with his hands.

Men who don't wear canes (such as I) are forever confronted with situations in which they do not know what to do with their hands.

Most men (such as I) are not allowed to put their hands in their pockets because their wives say this ruins the line of their jackets. Some men (such as I) use their hands, when in doubt, to light up a cigaret, cigar, or pipe, but this is very hard on non-smokers.

But the rare man who has nerve enough to wear a cane (which I have not) never has trouble with his hands.

His hands are always profitably occupied, twirling the cane, or resting, folded, on the cane, or putting the cane down, or picking the cane up.

There is nothing quite so inspiring as the sight of a cane-wearing gentleman strolling down the street, his feet moving in cadence to the swing of the cane, the cane swinging in cadence to the movement of his feet.

Oh, how I envy the man with nerve enough to carry a cane.

Oh, how I wish I, too, could summon up the courage to wear one.

By golly, I think I will. Right now.

All right, here we go, strolling down the avenue, hup, one, two, hup, three, four, cane at the ready.

... OOPS, tripped over the darn thing.

Yet I do not despair. I am going to learn how to wear a cane if it kills me, and I am going to start learning as soon as I get out of this traction splint.

JAYCEE PROJECT

City, Japanese Students To Exchange Art

BUSY, BUSY JAYCEES

Swinging into the new year, Victoria Jaycees continue to foster high school projects. In top picture, D. W. Brown, left, supervisor of visual education, and Vic Smith, Jaycee vice-president, examines paintings by Japanese school children to be displayed in Greater Victoria junior high schools this month.

WAS IT YOU?

LETTERS TO DRIVERS

(In this column the Times presents letters from and to drivers about careless, discourteous or reckless infractions of driving rules. When you see one, just send in the place, date and time, and what happened. DON'T give the number of the offending vehicle. Only initials of complainants will be used.)

Today's beefs:

Thursday at 7:55 a.m. a late model Austin turned from View Street on to Government against a red light, just squeezing into a line of about four cars going up Government with the light. If he had waited about 10 seconds the road would have been clear.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Frederick Scott, 3851 Cedar Hill, $35 and licence suspension for careless driving.

Joseph Harnz Vaas, HMCS Stettler, $40 for careless driving Christmas Day resulting in a rear-end collision at Douglas and Pandora, and $50 for driving while under suspension.

Bert William Barker, 2720 Doncaster, $50 for driving while under suspension.

Albert Edward Glover, 450 Duplin, $25 for speeding over 30 miles an hour, paced at 50.55.

Kenneth Bergoyne, 210 St. Lawrence, $35 and licence suspension for careless driving resulting in collision with a public works air compressor on Michigan, causing more than $200 to the car and extensive damage to the compressor.

Stanley R. Bell, 1683 McRae, $35 and licence suspension for careless driving resulting in collision and $550 total damage on Hillside.

Steward Shuns 'Up Spirits'; Saves $175

Ex-navy officer Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Daily Times, is aboard HMCS Ontario for the first leg of a three-month training cruise. His dispatches are being filed by wireless from the ship.

BY STUART KEATE

ON BOARD HMCS ONTARIO

Abstention from the navy's rum ration has saved him $175.20 during his career, CPO William John Castles of Victoria estimates.

The Japanese art display, viewed by art teachers in advance, is sure to win the admiration of Victoria pupils and parents who will view the works drawn by children ranging between the ages of nine and 12 years.

WELL DONE

Some of the paintings are so well executed that some art teachers found it hard to believe they were painted by youngsters.

The paintings cover all types of subjects, brightly colored and containing both feeling and mood.

"The paintings show that children of all nations see and feel the same things," said Mr. Smith. "There is a common bond between them."

He said the Jaycees may arrange to display the art work at a public exhibition later in the year.

The Victoria children plan to paint an equal number of paintings depicting major industry, the Canadian way of life and Canadian history, for shipment to Japan.

Sommers' Appeal In Court Here January 30

Appeal by former lands and forests minister R. E. Sommers against an order allowing David A. Sturdy to examine his bank account will be heard in B.C. Appeal Court here, starting Jan. 30.

The slander suit by Mr. Sommers against the Vancouver lawyer arises out of remarks made by Mr. Sturdy in December, 1955, before the Sloan Forestry Commission about the former minister's handling of forest management licences.

Bennett Attacks Wheat Curb Plan

'Criminal' to Restrict Output in Hungry World

Premier Bennett today attacked the Gordon Economic Commission over its proposal that the federal government restrict wheat limiting farmers to quotas. "In a world of great expanding populations needing food, it would be criminal to restrict wheat production in any way," the premier said. "Canada has a responsibility to the world. We have been given these great prairies and huge fertile resources and we should use them for the benefit of humanity at large."

At his first press conference for nearly two months, the premier said Canada should devise means of distribution and financing so that "less fortunate peoples may share in our wealth of natural food."

The premier also took issue with the Gordon Commission on its suggestion that irrigation schemes in Canada should be limited.

"This is ridiculous," he said. "We must have more irrigation schemes, not only in British Columbia, but on the prairies and in other parts of the country."

He further criticized the commission's recommendation that road transport should pay more towards road costs.

"Canada is a country of vast distances and transportation costs are going to be increasingly important to the life of every community and every business."

LOWER TAXES

"We must have real competition between the three main systems — railways, highways and airways — and this competition should embrace both rates and services. Taxes which hinder business and development should be lowered not raised."

The premier joined with Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston in opposing the Gordon commission's proposal that a national energy authority be established to regulate exports of oil, gas, hydro-electric and other power sources.

NO EXPORT

He said B.C. should not alienate its resources by placing them under federal control and insisted that no hydro-electric power should be exported from B.C. — not even surplus power.

"It is the surplus power that attracts industry. Hydro-electric power comes before industry not after it. And we can attract enough industry to use all our power."

Lands and Forests Minister Williston said he is in full agreement with the Gordon Commission forecast that Canada's forest industry will nearly double its production in the next 25 years.

"It is quite logical," Mr. Williston said. "In British Columbia alone we are just moving into the northern half of the province, which contains more than one-third of our timber resources."

DOUBLE OUTPUT

"If we utilize them on a sustained yield basis we may double our forest production, too. At the present time much of our forest lands are not being harvested because of difficulty of access."

Proposals in the Gordon Report for full payment of federal property taxes and levying of a tax on cars by municipal governments were received with mixed feelings at City Hall.

Comptroller Dennis Young doubts it will be easy to apply a municipal tax on cars although, "it sounds desirable as a revenue producer to offset road maintenance costs."

FULL TAXES

Mayor Percy Scurrell felt the provincial government should follow the federal government lead and pay full taxes on provincial buildings in the city which receive municipal services.

"It would solve our financial problems."

He was not enthusiastic about a tax on cars at the municipal level.

The Gordon Commission proposed longer-term municipal borrowing.

It said nearly $100,000,000 may be spent during the next 25 years in housing and "social capital" — roads, schools, hospitals, waterworks and the like. The greatest need would be in cities and surrounding areas.

WOMAN 'FAIR' After Being Pinned in Car

Saanich police today were forced to pry the steering wheel off the neck of Mrs. Betty Dorothy Bremner, West Saanich Road, when the small English car she was driving was in collision with a tobacconist's van driven by John S. Griffin, 1830 Crescent.

The victim was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital suffering severe cuts to throat and chin, plus multiple lacerations. She was reported in "fair" condition.

The accident took place about 10:45 a.m. when Mrs. Bremner was coming towards Victoria on the West Saanich Road. Her car apparently skidded, about 2 1/2 miles the other side of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, and was in collision with the oncoming truck.

The road was slushy and extremely slippery at the time. It had been snowing in the area since 9 a.m.

About $250 damage was done to the truck while the car was a complete loss.

Two men were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by city police at 10:40 a.m. after the truck in which they were riding collided with a car at Herald and Government.

Harry Neufeld, 17, 619 Avalon, was treated for a cut head and his companion Robert Jupe, 36, 118 Aloha, suffered a bruised arm. Both were discharged.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Under what conditions did the late Albert Einstein take up residence in the U.S.? G.L.D.

A. It was a voluntary move. On a visit to New York early in 1933, he declared he would never again set foot in Germany, his native land, while the country was still in the grip of Hitlerism. Events moved forward after that. After a stay in Belgium he moved to England. He delivered an address in Albert Hall, London, in October, 1933. In the autumn of that year the great move came, and he went to the U.S. as a voluntary exile. He was honored in the republic, and seven years later he became a U.S. citizen.

Q. What is the population of Sarnia, Ont.? D.E.

A. The Federal census of last June recorded that well-known city had 52,493 within its city boundaries, showing growth of 11,190 since the 1951 census.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Single Centennial Project Urged On City Clubmen

Hugh Stephen, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, Thursday urged a meeting of service club representatives to support a major centennial project rather than scatter their fire on a number of schemes.

Sixteen delegates, representing 13 clubs, attended the meeting called to discuss a suggestion that their respective organizations get behind a major centennial project which has yet to be selected.

The members agree in principle to recommend to their clubs that they support "one project" to be chosen at a future meeting of service club representatives.

SHOPPING GUIDE

A Clear, Complete List Makes Shopping Trip Easy
By PENNY SAVER

Whether it rains or snows or the sun shines, food shopping is a "must." On the dreary days it is sometimes a real effort to don shopping togs and prepare for the trek, but if you set out with a clear list in your hand, the job is made easier. Decide now what you'd like to have for weekend dinners.

Vegetables to make the meals interesting will take up much of your list. White, always tasty cauliflower sells at about 30 cents each. Broccoli, an excellent winter vegetable, has dropped a bit in price and is now 19 cents a pound. Some stores are stocking Yakima turnips, because shipments from Alberta have been held up by the CPR strike. Other stores in the city are still stocking locally grown turnips, of excellent quality, at four pounds for 25 cents.

Also local are green peas priced at 25 cents a pound and

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

About a house guest bringing towel and soap:

I had been invited by a friend in another city to spend a weekend at her home. I knew I would be taking a bath while there, so I packed my own towel and soap, not knowing how my hostess would feel if I used hers. She was insulted. Was I wrong?

Louise Davis Answers:

You shouldn't have taken your towel and soap any more than you would have taken your own table napkin. The worse offender was your friend who was insulted. She should have realized that you were trying in your own way to be considerate and thoughtful. You meant well and she should have appreciated it and overlooked it. The next time you visit anyone, leave such things at home. Think it over and imagine yourself having a weekend guest. It would be nothing at all to get out an extra towel or two and a wash cloth for your guest's convenience. When family and guest use the same bathroom, they generally use the same soap which has antiseptic qualities. So an extra bar for a guest isn't necessary.

two pounds for 45 cents, depending on where you shop. Sprouts are about the same price as they were, two pounds for 45 cents. Green beans are 35 cents a pound, and green cabbage has gone up a bit, to three pounds for 33 cents.

For a change, you might enjoy egg plant at 35 cents a pound or leeks at three bunches for 29 cents. New potatoes are two pounds for 23 cents. Carrots, to be served cooked or raw in your salads are two bunches for 23 cents. Speaking of salads, Saturday's lunch could be taken care of neatly and tastily with a big, summery, tossed salad. Green onions at 12 cents a bunch. It's a little high, but they're necessary for most good salads.

Romaine is 19 cents, and radishes are two bunches for a quarter. Lettuce costs from 15 to 20 cents a head, and celery from 29 to 35 cents a stalk. Endive costs 10 cents a head.

Oranges are very popular during these winter months. Sweet tangerines are still around, at 49 cents a dozen. Marmalade oranges for you energetic cooks are two pounds for 27 cents. Navel oranges for juice or snacks are two dozen for 59 cents, and 39 cents a dozen, depending on size.

Delicious apples are two pounds for 29 cents, and bags of Fancy Delicious are 65 cents. Macintosh apples are 59 cents a bag.

A centerpiece of colorful fruit would be pleasant for a change. Alameda grapes, fun to nibble on, are 38 cents a pound and emperors are two pounds for 49 cents.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Increased Attractiveness Will Improve Your Outlook

I know from personal experience with my figure molding classes and with thousands of letters from readers what a terrific impact increased physical attractiveness can have on a woman's personality and happiness. In fact on her whole outlook on life.

Sometimes we fail to realize what an effect overweight, complexion trouble, round shoulders or other defects in beauty have on us until we have lost them. After doing so we find ourselves feeling younger. We take up new activities and enjoy life more because we have more self-confidence and energy. We had not admitted to ourselves that we had unconsciously been avoiding social life or meeting new people, swimming, dancing or making a speech, because we were self-conscious about the way we looked.

We are human and therefore are likely to keep the rolls on us while the years roll over us unless we have the whip of necessity to get us over the hump. This may be the wish to look lovely for someone we love, to get ahead in a career, the determination to save our health or to get into a new dress!

Women also need assurance that they can accomplish a certain goal in a certain length of time. I long have felt that many women fail to attempt self-improvement because they lack information and because the whole venture seems so vague.

I bring you my eight-week self-improvement marathon once each year to give you that assurance and the direction you need. I choose the first of the year for marathon because your new year's resolutions are still hot, and also because most of us gain weight over the holiday seasons. In my marathon booklet you will find help in calculating your ideal weight but today let me enlarge on this. Not your weight, just the weight information! Remember that you must take into consideration not only your bone structure but your muscle development. For instance, an athlete may weigh far more than any chart says he should but may not have an ounce of fat on him. So, if you have good tone, well-developed muscles, you can allow yourself more weight, just as you can if you have a large frame.

If you would like to join marathon for a loss of 20 pounds in eight weeks' time, or if you wish to banish or diminish any other defects you may have, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my marathon booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Tomorrow: "Readers' questions about marathon are answered."

BRITISH WOMEN
FROWN ON NEW FOOD PRICES

LONDON (CP) — Openly disgruntled and tired by explanations, British housewives are publicly airing their views about rising food prices.

On buses, in queues and in shops they ask each other: "Where will it end? It's hard enough to make ends meet now."

The treasury, a government department, seeks to explain in its monthly bulletin for industry that the "retail prices index is likely to rise slightly more than seasonally in the early part of 1957." Blame is attached to the Suez crisis and the "purely temporary" increase in gasoline and oil industry.

Former Cafe Operators Get $43,500 Damages

One of the largest sums ever awarded in a Victoria lawsuit, a total of $43,500 Thursday was ordered paid former co-proprietors of the Strathcona Hotel Cafe.

The judgment, resulting from a trial last spring, was handed down in Supreme Court by Mr. Justice Norman Whittaker.

It awarded Mrs. Thelma Simmons $26,000 and Everett Sisson $17,500.

Basis of judgment was that a clause in the five-year lease entitled them to lease renewal, which was not granted. Thus they were awarded profits from a five-year lease, based on the original lease, less their actual earnings during this period in other occupations.

George Gregory, appearing for defendant Barney Olson, owner of the Strathcona Hotel in which the cafe is located, said it is likely the decision will be appealed.

The suit had been on court dockets three years. Plaintiffs were represented by Marsh Gordon.

CRIME WAVE PEAK

ALDERMEN CHALLENGED TO QUIT BY BUSINESS TAX SUPPORTER

First candidate for city council in the 1957 election race—11 months away—is Ivan W. Hanchard, 60, 1091 Joan Crescent, who came out strongly Thursday in support of business tax.

Claiming 40 years in municipal administration "all over Saskatchewan," he challenged any of the present aldermen, except Ald. Don Smith, to resign and fight the trade licence issue at the polls. He felt Mayor Percy Scurrell should quit too.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY The Dan Gerber
(MOTHER OF 5)

A column-reading mother writes: "I was surprised to find that I learned more about what was best for baby through the little mistakes I made. After all, I didn't really know she would prefer being held, bathed or fed another way until I did it the wrong way." Reassuring to know that new mother mistakes often lead to better baby care.

Strengthening influence. Proteins are the great strength-givers, the great growing tools of the body.

That's why protein-rich meat is often considered a daily must for babies. Gerber Strained Meats—savory, smooth and succulent—are specially processed for high retention of quality proteins; precious vitamins and minerals. Made from selected juicy cuts, most of the fat and coarse tissue is removed. All pure meat, with just enough broth to brighten the flavor.

Saving groos. Save large, plastic vegetable bags. Slit the seams and you've got sizable, wet-proof squares that serve nicely as shoulder pads when you bubble baby—lap pads when you hold your angel.

Why not share the wealth of mother knowledge? So many mothers just like you send their helpful hints to me. If you'd like to share your special short cuts and suggestions, please write to me: Mrs. Dan Gerber, Dept. B, Box 4027, Terminal A, Toronto, Ont.

Early menu entree. Doctors recommend fully ripe bananas for small fry, not only to provide energy-giving calories in easy to digest form, but because most babies take to this palatable fruit almost instantly. Gerber Strained Bananas have a uniform, just-right degree of ripeness because ripening is controlled. Special processing preserves the delicate banana flavor and appealing color. The texture? Velvet-smooth and a delight to a delicate palate.

DIETING IS A LAUGH

Wife Takes Load Hubby Benefits

(This is the last of a series of five articles by the well-known motion picture, television and night club comedian Jack Leonard. In these articles Mr. Leonard reveals how he reduced his weight from 330 pounds to 205—a weight loss of 125 pounds—by dieting.)

By JACK LEONARD

It takes two to diet—at least for a married man. Actually it takes three because any serious reducing attempt should be carried on under a doctor's supervision.

But away from the doctor's office, it's a two-way effort that takes two. My wife has to get in on it. My wife's a very stubborn girl—thank God. Many was the time I felt like I wanted to cheat—one of those looks from her would set me straight. Her sense of humor held up, too. I'm sorry to say mine didn't all the time. She stuck with me through fat and thin. Through out the ups and downs that everybody in show business has, she encouraged me. The only thing she never encouraged me about was food—and for that I now am very grateful.

My wife always wanted me to lose weight, but of course like most fat men I didn't get around to it until I was in agony. But once my mind was made up—she's the one who helped me keep it that way.

THE JACK LEONARD SPECIAL DIET

We'd kid about these low calorie menus—invent the Jack E. Leonard special diet: breakfast: two ounces of weak tea; lunch: three potato eyes; dinner: the tea leaves left from breakfast. No-calorie no-nothing suicide-type diet.

It was tough. I was supposed to watch my food—and believe me, I couldn't take my eyes off the table when I'd see some of the stuff served up.

Seriously, though, Cathy worked wonders with what she had to work with.

Being on a diet becomes a sort of obsession. Like weighing yourself. At first I was on and off the scales half a dozen times a day. And what a shock! I'd get up weighing 250. A couple of

Immigrants Renege on Fare Loan Advances

MONTREAL (BUP)—Private detective agencies have been hired to search for some 1,000 European immigrants who have disappeared without repaying money advanced them for their passage to Canada.

A spokesman for Immigrant aid societies said "there is no question of looking for criminals," even though persons owing the money have failed to keep in touch with the agencies. The spokesman said the case of a family with a 15-letter name was an example of how difficult it was to find the immigrants whose failure to repay loans has cut heavily into the agencies' working capital. He said a tracer showed that after seven moves in Canada, the family's name had dwindled to seven letters. The family still is being sought.

CPR Trains Roll Saturday

BULLETIN

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today in the Commons that the CPR firemen's strike has been settled. He made the announcement at 5 p.m. (2 p.m. Victoria time.) Train service will resume Saturday, he said.

MONTREAL (CP)—CPR President N. R. Crump left here today to return to Ottawa for a new and possibly crucial meeting with Prime Minister St. Laurent on proposals aimed at ending the strike that has tied up the CPR system for nine days.

Mr. Crump's departure followed a morning-long meeting with the CPR executive committee. He was expected to arrive early this afternoon.

It was understood that he placed before the meeting Prime Minister St. Laurent's latest proposals to end the strike.

CPR officials here declined to disclose what decision had been reached at the executive meeting.

But a flurry of activity around official offices led observers to believe that a settlement of the strike is imminent.

Earlier in Ottawa, St. Laurent told the Commons: "I hope there will be a speedy settlement that will permit a speedy resumption of the transportation service."

The prime minister has been meeting CPR and union officials for the last two days.

Later, a Liberal member of Parliament said outside the House that government members look for a settlement "some time today."

Mr. St. Laurent told Commons both disputants had submitted objections to some of the terms of a settlement plan which he had proposed to them.

"The objections were not the same from each," he said. "I do not consider they are inseparable objections. They are being considered by both sides."

One informant said it could be quite late in the day before a settlement was nailed down.

PM TAKES ISSUE WITH PROBERS

No Immediate Implementation Of Gordon Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today took issue with the sweeping proposal by the Gordon royal commission to control western wheat surpluses by guaranteeing prices only for pre-announced quotas.

He said in the Commons that recommendations dealing with the Canadian wheat board did not reflect a "proper conception" of the role of the board as set out by parliament.

The prime minister volunteered the comment after William Hamilton (PC, Montreal-Notre Dame de Grace) asked whether he had studied the commission's interim report before it was tabled in parliament Thursday afternoon.

Mr. St. Laurent said he had read the report earlier when it was submitted to the government. He added that some portions "rather did surprise me."

The commission apparently had a conception of the wheat board's role "that didn't fit with my conception of what the role of the wheat board was."

Mr. St. Laurent's comment appeared to throw cold water on one of the major proposals on agriculture put forward by the royal commission which the government set up 18 months ago.

Mr. St. Laurent also told Commons the government has no present plan to implement the commission's economic blueprint for Canada's next quarter-century.

But he left open the possibility of legislation embodying some of the suggestions may be introduced before this parliamentary session ends.

Noting that the commission's preliminary report was made public only Thursday, he said there has been no decision by the government yet on any of the recommendations.

The report was being given "very serious consideration," however, and any decision on legislation stemming from it that could be introduced at this session would be announced "in due course."

He was replying in the Commons to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who asked especially whether commission suggestions for a business tax when somebody "gives y' th' business?"

Report Angers Howe, Gardiner

By VICTOR J. MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent
OTTAWA — Exploding on the Canadian political scene like no other document in modern times the Gordon Economic Commission has stirred up furious controversy within the cabinet and among Members of Parliament.

It has brought bitter denunciation of some of its recommendations from MPs and some cabinet ministers.

The possibility of Walter L. Gordon, chairman of the commission joining the cabinet appears to have faded, if indeed there ever was such a possibility, one cabinet source suggested this afternoon.

Others claimed that the speculation in the press that the 50-year-old Toronto accountant might be invited into the cabinet was not founded on fact. No invitation had been extended and none was expected to be forthcoming, now that Mr. Gordon was publicly identified in the report with views that are contrary to government policy. Copies of the report were circulated among the members Thursday night. The preliminary report astonished many of the MPs. Like Prime Minister St. Laurent they described themselves as "surprised" by some of its proposals. Others used more vigorous words to describe their reactions.

found enthusiasm among some prairie members. The suggestion of curtailed aid under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act and the declaration that the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation administration had virtually completed its work, brought cries of anguish from western agricultural representatives in the House.

The warning against irrigation schemes was interpreted by Saskatchewan MPs as a blow against the South Saskatchewan River Dam project.

Progressive Conservatives were pleased with the broad recommendations for government action to meet foreign investors' possible domination of the Canadian economy.

Both of them were aroused by sections of the report. In many respects ideas advanced are in direct variance with government policies. In other cases they are so new that no government policy exists.

The situation demanded this kind of a report, in the opinion of Mr. Gordon. "The economy of the country is changing," he told reporters at a press conference. "These changes will require a re-examination of some of the basic principles we all took for granted a few years ago."

Veteran parliamentarians predicted that the report and the views it expressed would end all chance of Gordon's joining the cabinet until at least both Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport and Rt. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, leave.

FOR FARMERS

Parity Prices Rejected

OTTAWA (CP)—The Gordon Commission has rejected proposals by farm bodies that agriculture be protected by parity prices.

The commission, endorsing the government's present price support policy, said the proposals should be used only to "mitigate distress" and not to encourage over production.

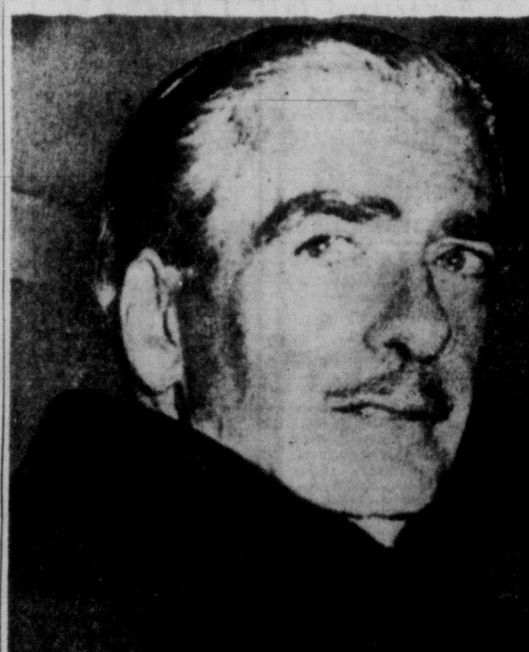

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture has proposed that price supports be based on 65 to 85 per cent of so-called parity. Prairie farmers' unions have proposed farmers be guaranteed full price parity.

Parity would relate the selling price of farmers' production to their production and living costs. If these costs rose, say farmers, then parity prices should also rise.

"We believe that the determination of support prices on the advice of a full-time board would be preferable to the application of more or less automatic formulae," the commission said.

Eden Quits Commons Seat; ... Doesn't Want Earldom

RETIRE TO PRIVATE LIFE

Latest chapter in the Sir Anthony Eden story occurred today when the former prime minister resigned his Commons seat, and is reported to have declined an earldom. (AP Wirephoto.)

(See Also Page 3)
LONDON (CP)—Sir Anthony Eden resigned from the House of Commons today, two days after stepping down as prime minister.

Eden, who was succeeded Thursday by Harold Macmillan, was offered an earldom, the customary award made by the sovereign to a retiring prime minister.

Reuters news agency said it was learned that Eden had declined the honor, possibly because a hereditary earldom would disqualify his son Nicholas from membership in the Commons on succession to the title.

Nicholas is not an MP but has run for election in the past. Leaving the Commons seat he had held for just over 33 years, Eden again pleaded ill health as he had when he resigned the prime ministership two days ago.

The 59-year-old Eden had represented Warwick and Leamington, a Midlands constituency, since December, 1923.

"I do not feel that this important constituency, so characteristic of our national life, should be represented by anyone who is not fit and able to give his full time to the task," said Eden.

GREAT HUMANITARIAN GONE

Ernie Fought For Underdog Right to Last

Ernest Edward Winch, a bricklayer who became one of the most-admired members of the B.C. Legislature, died today in Vancouver General Hospital at the age of 77.

When Mr. Winch was 73 years of age he declared he would retire "only to the coffin."

He held true to that statement by working for the many charities he supported, his constituency of Burnaby, and his beloved CCF party until stricken by a heart attack a week ago.

He was the father of Harold Winch, MP, former leader of the CCF party in B.C. and one of the most forceful orators ever heard in the provincial legislature.

Both Elected on First Attempt

They were both unemployed and on relief in 1933 when the CCF first contested an election in B.C. Father and son were elected in Burnaby and Vancouver East the first time they ran for office.

The father-son record of service was the longest in the British Commonwealth. They sat together in the legislative chamber until 1953, when Harold, resigned and later was elected to Parliament as member for Vancouver East.

Their combined 23 years and four months of legislative service easily surpassed the former record of Britain's Joseph and Austen Chamberlain. With Joseph's death July 2, 1914, a part-

Working on New Plan for Addicts

Shortly before his death, Mr. Winch visited California and Texas where he studied prison conditions.

He had intended to present a plan to the legislature next month on issuing free drugs to narcotics addicts.

Mr. Winch fired criticism at anyone he thought deserved it.

"There's too many of 'em now," the white-thatched member said once in opposing plans to start medical and law faculties at the University of B.C.

He worked hard to have the Crease Clinic, a preliminary treatment centre at the provincial asylum, established. He complained bitterly at one time of conditions at Oakalla Prison Farm, vigorously opposed capi-

Always Fought for the Underdog

He was a great humanitarian, and always fought for the underdog. Harold was hit over the head by RCMP during the hunger marches of the 30s, and the elder Winch never forgot it. He could be harsh and biting with his criticism of the system which he did not think provided all the social services people should have.

Mr. Winch always claimed that to be a true Christian a man had to be a socialist. He made politics a crusade which he carried on for the benefit of the aged and infirm.

Liked by Both Sides

"Ernie" was liked by all sides of the House. He had snow-white hair and eyebrows, and spoke in a high penetrating voice that revealed his Old Country origin.

In true fatherly fashion he used to sit back in his chair, preening and beaming with pride, when Harold was launched on one of his great speeches.

Mayor, Smith In Sharp Clash

Tempers flared at a special meeting of City Council Thursday as Ald. Don Smith charged Mayor Percy Scurrell with premeditation in returning the trade licence issue to committee.

The mayor twice ordered him to "Sit down."

The uproar began suddenly as Mayor Scurrell officially announced what everyone has known since Wednesday—Ald. Smith had resigned as chairman of the trade licence committee and Ald. Austin Curtis had taken over as chairman.

An expression of disappointment in Ald. Smith's action by Ald. M. H. Mooney brought the statement from Ald. Smith, "the fight has just started."

ALREADY DONE

Addressing the mayor he charged: "You have set up a new committee, a place to keep business tax discussions off council. It was premeditated. You had already set it all up."

"That is not true," said the mayor.

He explained no member of council had ever expressed opposition to trade licence revision.

"That's the full story, sit down." Council, shocked into silence, ratified the new appointments and turned to the matter of wage re-

Winch's Death Great Loss, Says Premier

Outstanding political leaders in B.C. today paid high tribute to Ernest E. Winch, veteran member of the B.C. legislature who died in hospital today in Vancouver.

In a voice choked with emotion, Premier Bennett spoke of Ernest Winch as "one of British Columbia's finest public servants, respected and esteemed by all parties in the House."

"In all the years I have known him he has never once taken a purely partisan attitude to any public issue. At all times he was chiefly interested in men and women in difficulties... people who had fallen on bad times... people in institutions, hospitals or penal institutions. It did not matter who or what they were, they were human beings to Ernie Winch and humanity was his first and foremost consideration."

More than once the Premier faltered and was on the point of breaking down.

"His political record by any standards was a splendid one," the premier continued.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said his passing would be deeply felt by all sides of the House and by all political parties in the province.

Health Minister Eric Martin: "His career rose above politics. He was devoted to human welfare. We shall miss him greatly during the coming session and for many sessions to come."

Former CCF provincial leader Arnold Webster said:

"Ernie Winch was more than an advocate, he was a builder, and to the end he continued to work with persistence and intelligence for the great cause to which his life was dedicated."

Arthur Turner, CCF member of the legislature for Vancouver East, said: "His death comes as a great shock, and I know of no one who can fill the place in public life so ably occupied by Mr. Winch for so many years."

Robert Strachan of Nanaimo, CCF provincial leader, was in Vancouver to attend a meeting when Mr. Winch died.

"It was with a sense of loss and regret that we heard of the passing of Ernie Winch," he said. "For 23 years he gave his all, not only for the CCF party but for B.C. as a whole."

"His work on behalf of our less privileged citizens, the sick, the elderly, will stand as a monument to a man who believed that a better world was possible and did his share to create that world. B.C. has lost a worker, the world has lost a citizen. All his life Ernie Winch had a cause, a worthwhile cause, and neither war nor depression could shake his belief in what was right."

The CCF leader said "although Ernie has gone, he will always remain as a living example of dedicated effort."

P. A. Gibbs, Liberal MLA for Oak Bay: "Ernie Winch passes from this world at a venerable age after a full life given unflinchingly to community service... I shall remember Ernie Winch as a man whom I believe thought and lived the Golden Rule."

IN AN 18

Doug Peden OUTDOOR REPORT

Time brings changes in many things. And one of the biggest changes on the outdoor front has been the increasing interest in winter fishing.

It doesn't seem many years since most of the winter fishing was done by a small band of old regulars. I can remember seeing fewer than 10 boats out on Saanich Inlet on a sunny January Sunday and Stan Williams was recalling the other day when only five or six anglers normally shared the weekend steelheading on the Cowichan River.

On most recent Sundays, the boats on the Inlet and the spinning rods at the Cowichan could be counted in the dozens. Helped by mild weather, anglers at Saanich Inlet have been enjoying one of their better winters. The run of spring salmon that added a lot of spice for a few weeks has eased off, but there are still a few springs around and limit catches of grise and bluebacks have been common this week.

Inlet fishing has been good enough that usually-favored topics are often taking a back seat. At Monday's hockey game, Ken Darbyshire spent more time discussing the scrappy blues that have been grabbing his bucktail flies than he did telling of the new colt he purchased in California. And Bill Garner, waiting at the timer's bench during Tuesday's basketball game, was as eager to extol the limit-taking virtues of blue-and-white bucktails as he was to take his turn on the floor.

Abalone spoons, Kam-Lures and bucktails have been the most productive lures at the Inlet, but up at Crofton, where a good part of a huge run of bluebacks is still around, the Super Duper lure has been the big killer.

Cowichan Bay has been a hot spot for grise, bluebacks and jack springs in recent days, which gives some anglers hope that there will be a repeat performance of the big run of fish that arrived at Saanich Inlet in mid-January last year. Steelheading is always a gamble. Stretches of water which yield good catches one day are often empty of fish the next, or the ironheads may ignore all offerings. However, reports indicate that the best part of our steelhead season is here.

Rivers in the Alberni district appear to offer the best chances of tangling with a steelhead. The Stamp, Sprout, Ash and Somers rivers and China Creek all rate as good bets.

On the east side of the Island, the Cowichan, Nanaimo, Little Qualicum, Puntledge, Englishman, Quinsam and Campbell rivers are classed as fair and are worth a try.

Little has been heard from the Sooke and San Juan rivers, but at this time of year they should be harboring some steelies.

Things have been fairly quiet on the Cowichan this week but Jack Young and Bob Bell each managed to beach two steelheads. Best area appears to be in the river bottom around Cedar Log Pool, Beans Pool or the old Stoltz bridge but there is good reason to expect a new run and pools by the White and Silver bridges could be good by Sunday.

Trollers and spin-fishermen using small spoons have been taking a few trout from some of the lakes, including Great Central, Sprout, Dog (Summit) and Cameron. Near Victoria, Elk Lake is always a possibility. You probably won't take many trout from the Elk, but the fish usually average around three pounds.

Annual meeting of the Victoria Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will be held at Club Sirrocco Monday night at 8. In addition to naming a new slate of officers, members will be asked to vote on new by-law proposals and a recommendation to revise the constitution.

Several anglers have been asking why the access to Rogers (Dougans) Lake has been blocked off.

The lake lies partly on Indian reserve land and partly on private property. In 1939, access to the lake through reserve land was granted. This access was included in original surveys for the new highway but, by mistake, was omitted in the latest survey.

The B.C. Game Commission has taken the matter up with the Highways Department and hopes to have the access restored this spring.

In the meantime, those travelling on reserve property to reach the lake should possess a permit issued by the Indian agent at Duncan and costing $2. The same permit will allow the holder to fish from the Indian reserve at the mouth of the Cowichan River. The permit does not give hunting privileges.

POISONALLY, THINGS COULDN'T BE WOISER

Jacobs' Beach Mourns

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—The sands of Jacobs Beach were inundated today by the tears of the fight mob following a series of events which fractured the arches on every pair of blue suede shoes in Cauliflower Canyon.

In the busiest, and blackest, 24-hour period since the last 5-to-1 shot was beaten in a breeze, boxing reeled under these discouraging developments:

1. Iceland banned boxing.
2. Jake LaMotta, the Bronx Bull, was arraigned on a morals charge after allegedly mixing in among the calves.
3. Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, a writer and/or fighter of little note, was arrested on charges of forging his driving licence.

4. Mid dleweight champion Gene Fullmer refused to fight Ray Robinson in March because it will be the mink mating season on his manager's Utah ranch.
5. Carmen Basilio, the welter king, "holsted" his hand and thus delayed his title bout with Johnny Saxton.

"Now that there Iceland bit," argued Mushky Jackson as an impromptu wake was held, "might maybe set a president. Poisonally, I never go to Iceland, being a Rose-land man myself, but imagine

If the news of this gets to Joisey."

Heads wagged solemnly, Mushky at times being somewhat of a promoter "acrost" the Hudson. Then the voice of Murray (The Memory) Goodman filtered through.

"It's gotta be a bum rap on Jake," quoth The Memory, a boxing publicist whose files are in his head.

"And don't youse guys think it's a bum rap on the Hurricane, too?" demanded Mushky (The Owl) McGee.

"It just so happens that poisonally I happen to know that he is no Rumband with a pen, nor not even with a pencil."

The gloom thickened as they considered the ways of guys and gendarmes. Then came the voice of Manny, The Musician, somewhat of a celebrity because he plays a mouth organ with his nose.

"Nor not even any fights," moaned Manny, tapping his harmonica listlessly against the palm of his hand. "Basilio has to bang up his pinky and who knows what the price will be the time he's ready to go again."

More nods. More gloom. And the steel-on-concrete voice of Murray, The Memory, came through again.

"It's woiser," he said, "than the day one of my bums takes a dive without never tellin' me foist."

Hunt Faces Problem In Singles Defence

Defending champion Bob Hunt will be hard put to retain his men's singles title next week when the Victoria badminton championships open at Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club.

Play opens Wednesday, Jan. 16, with the finals to be played Saturday, Jan. 19.

Hunt, who is presently at UBC and has played little badminton this season, should see his greatest threat from Ed Hedley, VLTBA

PHYSICAL FITNESS TESTS FOR 2,000 STUDENTS

Two thousand Greater Victoria school students, in a cross section extending from grade one to grade 12, will receive special physical fitness tests between now and the end of February.

A meeting of the Victoria branch, Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation Tuesday night completed plans for preliminary tests to begin immediately.

Purpose is to measure abilities of West Coast Canadian youngsters against children in the United States and parts of Europe.

The tests, known internationally as the Kraus-Weber tests, proved in 1954 that American children are less muscular than their counterparts in Italy and Austria.

Results were so astonishing President Eisenhower ordered special committees to give the matter more study.

The association which will conduct the test here is comprised of physical education teachers of local schools. It will work in co-operation with district 61 school board.

CAHPER chairman of testing is Fred Martin, Victoria College instructor.

In European tests, 8.2 per cent of the children failed at least one test, compared to 56.6 per cent of the American children tested.

Described as minimum muscular fitness tests, they measure abilities which the originators feel are necessary to all persons to live a happy life.

Testing is to be carried out during regular physical education periods whenever possible.

The instructors who will administer the tests are now undergoing preparation and training with experimental groups so that statistics recorded will be based on uniform procedures.

Results will be announced when the tests are completed.

BETWEEN TIMES

By

MONTE ROBERTS

One of the things I have always wanted to do but never have had enough nerve to do was wear a cane.

You will notice I did not commit the gauche of saying "carry" a cane.

I said "wear" a cane.

This goes to show how much thought and study I have put into the matter.

The man who wears a cane, I have always felt, is the man who will go far in this world.

Wearing a cane does even more for one than wearing a dark homburg hat, a Schweppesian beard, or Elvis Presley sideburns.

A man who wears a cane is obviously master of his own fate; capable of sweeping aside obstacles on the road to success with the same ease he slashes the head off a dandelion; and what's more, he is never at a loss for what to do with his hands.

Men who don't wear canes (such as I) are forever confronted with situations in which they do not know what to do with their hands.

Most men (such as I) are not allowed to put their hands in their pockets because their wives say this ruins the line of their jackets. Some men (such as I) use their hands, when in doubt, to light up a cigarette, cigar, or pipe, but this is very hard on non-smokers.

But the rare man who has nerve enough to wear a cane (which I have not) never has trouble with his hands.

His hands are always profitably occupied, twirling the cane, or resting, folded, on the cane, or putting the cane down, or picking the cane up.

There is nothing quite so inspiring as the sight of a cane-wearing gentleman strolling down the street, his feet moving in cadence to the swing of the cane, the cane swinging in cadence to the movement of his feet.

Oh, how I envy the man with nerve enough to carry a cane.

Oh, how I wish I, too, could summon up the courage to wear one.

By golly, I think I will. Right now.

All right, here we go, strolling down the avenue, hup, one, two, hup, three, four, cane at the ready.

... OOPS, tripped over the darn thing.

Yet I do not despair. I am going to learn how to wear a cane if it kills me, and I am going to start learning as soon as I get out of this traction splint.

JAYCEE PROJECT

City, Japanese Students To Exchange Art

BUSY, BUSY JAYCEES

Swinging into the new year, Victoria Jaycees continue to foster high school projects. In top picture, D. W. Brown, right, supervisor of visual education, and Vic Smith, Jaycee vice-president, examine paintings by Japanese school children to be displayed in Greater Victoria junior high schools this month.

WAS IT YOU?

LETTERS TO DRIVERS

(In this column the Times presents letters from and to drivers about careless, discourteous or reckless infractions of driving rules. When you see one, just send in the place, date and time, and what happened. DON'T give the number of the offending vehicle. Only initials of complainants will be used.)

Today's beefs:

Thursday at 7:55 a.m. a late model Austin turned from View Street on to Government against a red light, thus squeezing into a line of about four cars going up Government with the light. If he had waited about 10 seconds the road would have been clear.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Frederick Scott, 3851 Cedar Hill, $35 and licence suspension for careless driving.

Joseph Harnz Vaas, HMCS Stettler, $40 for careless driving Christmas Day resulting in a rear-end collision at Douglas and Pandora, and $50 for driving while under suspension.

Bert William Barker, 2720 Doncaster, $50 for driving while under suspension.

Albert Edward Glover, 450 Duplin, $25 for speeding over 30 miles an hour, paced at 50-55.

Kenneth Bergoyne, 210 St. Lawrence, $35 and licence suspension for careless driving resulting in collision with a public works air compressor on Michigan, causing more than $200 damage to the car and extensive damage to the compressor.

Stanley R. Bell, 1683 McRae, $35 and licence suspension for careless driving resulting in collision and $550 total damage on Hillside.

A unique plan to promote international relations is being sponsored by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce which has arranged for school children to exchange their art work with children of other nations.

The plan, acclaimed by educationalists, is expected to spread to other Canadian cities.

The Jaycee plan will get its first trial this month when a display of 230 paintings by Japanese painters are rotated among junior high schools.

IN JUNE

Victoria pupils will send their paintings to Japan in June.

"We hope next year to be able to exchange paintings with another country, perhaps New Zealand," said Vic Smith, vice-president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. "Art is a medium which all nations understand."

The Japanese art display, viewed by art teachers in advance, is sure to win the admiration of Victoria pupils and parents who will view the works drawn by children ranging between the ages of nine and 12 years.

WELL DONE

Some of the paintings are so well executed that some art teachers found it hard to believe they were painted by youngsters.

The paintings cover all types of subjects, brightly colored and containing both feeling and mood.

"The paintings show that children of all nations see and feel the same things," said Mr. Smith. "There is a common bond between them."

He said the Jaycees may arrange to display the art work at a public exhibition later in the year.

The Victoria children plan to paint an equal number of paintings depicting major industry, the Canadian way of life and Canadian history, for shipment to Japan.

Sommers' Appeal In Court Here January 30

Appeal by former lands and forests minister R. E. Sommers against an order allowing David A. Sturdy to examine his bank account will be heard in B.C. Appeal Court here, starting Jan. 30.

The slander suit by Mr. Sommers against the Vancouver lawyer arises out of remarks made by Mr. Sturdy in December, 1955, before the Sloan Forestry Commission about the former minister's handling of forest management licences.

Bowker Creek Flood Survey Set Saturday

City council public works committee is expected to survey the Bowker Creek area between Hillside and Clawthorpe Saturday following renewed requests from residents for improvements to the drainage system.

The area was hardest hit of all the district during the Dec. 9 flooding and has been a constant source of irritation.

Ald. Don Smith said today complaints have been filed with him by an organization of residents who say culverts now in use are too small. They also feel the alderman said that Saanich should be required to halt the flow of drainage into the city through the creek.

"It's going to be in the budget," Mayor Percy Scurrell commented.

"The reason it hasn't been improved is that we just haven't had the money."

RESPONSIBILITY

He too thought Saanich has a responsibility in the matter.

"Saanich has done nothing about Bowker Creek."

Bowker Creek descends to the sea through Saanich, the city and Oak Bay.

The mayor pointed out in his inaugural address last Monday: "Bowker Creek from North Dairy Road to Burton should be enclosed. This will cost $7,000."

And the winding section of wooden culvert from Hillside to Myrtle should be enclosed in concrete.

"This will cost some $20,000."

Depending on the inconvenience to homes in the neighborhood, which will be assessed by the committee Saturday, council may be asked to undertake these improvements before discussion of the works budget in May.

Steward Shuns 'Up Spirits'; Saves $175

ON BOARD HMCS ONTARIO

—Absence from the navy's rum ration has saved him $175.20 during his career, CPO William John Castles of Victoria estimates.

As captain's steward in the cruiser Ontario, Castles is called upon to serve all manner of refreshment in 45-degree seas without spilling a drop. But as a temperance man he never touches the stuff himself.

The navy pays such people six cents a day in lieu of grog while at sea. Castles figures he has spent eight of his 17 years in the navy at sea. That's 2,920 days, and at the consolation rate of six cents a day it adds up to $1,320.

The chief, who was on board HMCS Prince Rupert when she bagged a submarine during her first Atlantic run back in 1944, did the arithmetic Thursday and the Ontario and her sister ships Jonquiere and Stettler steamed across blue Pacific seas towards Hawaii.

Seventy-five per cent of the men in Ontario answer the daily call to "Up Spirits" at 11.15 each morning to receive their tot of the bone - warning Nelson's blood. The actual figures in Ontario are: Draw 384; dry 133.

Chief Castles feels he has the best authority in the world for abstinence. Five years ago when he was in HMCS Crusader he had the privilege of serving Her Majesty Princess Elizabeth on her trip from Vancouver to Victoria. Her Majesty advised steward Castles at the time that he was not to worry about cigarettes or spirits as far as she was concerned. The Duke would require both in moderation.

"That impressed me," says CPO Castles, who makes his home at 324 Rutledge Street in Victoria with his wife and son, Barry, aged eight.

In 1952, Castles looked after Governor-General Vincent Massey during his visit to Prince Rupert and has a fine pigskin wallet as a souvenir bearing the vice-regal crest.

'Criminal' to Restrict Output in Hungry World

Premier Bennett today attacked the Gordon Economic Commission over its proposal that the federal government restrict wheat production in Canada by limiting farmers to quotas.

"In a world of great expanding populations needing food, it would be criminal to restrict our wheat production in any way," the premier said. "Canada has a responsibility to the world."

We have been given these great prairies and huge fertile resources and we should use them for the benefit of humanity at large."

At his first press conference for nearly two months, the premier said Canada should devise means of distribution and financing so that "less fortunate peoples may share in our wealth of natural food."

He further criticized the commission's recommendation that road transport should pay more towards road costs.

"Canada is a country of vast distances and transportation costs are going to be increasingly important to the life of every community and every business."

LOWER TAXES

"We must have real competition between the three main systems — railways, highways and airways — and this competition should embrace both rates and services. Taxes which hinder business and development should be lowered not raised."

The premier joined with Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston in opposing the Gordon commission's proposal that a national energy authority be established to regulate exports of oil, gas, hydro-electric and other power sources.

NO EXPORT

He said B.C. should not alienate its resources by placing them under federal control and insisted that no hydro-electric power should be exported from B.C. — not even surplus power.

"It is the surplus power that attracts industry. Hydro-electric power comes before industry not after it. And we can attract enough industry to use all our power."

Lands and Forests Minister Williston said he is in full agreement with the Gordon Commission forecast that Canada's forest industry will nearly double its production in the next 25 years.

"It is quite logical," Mr. Williston said. "In British Columbia."

Goodwill Firm Joins U.S. Counterpart

New life for Victoria's flagging Goodwill Enterprises Ltd. was indicated Thursday when the company formally affiliated with the prosperous Goodwill Industries of America.

At a luncheon in Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Robert Watkins, field service director of GIA, predicted Goodwill Enterprises here would be 90 per cent self-supporting after two years.

Within seven years it could be a $100,000 concern employing 50 to 55 handicapped persons daily, he said.

A non-profit organization pledged to employ the handicapped, Goodwill Industries of America has 18 member companies in the United States and seven in Canada.

SUBSIDIES

Last year the total operating budget was $22,000,000, and $15,000,000 was paid in wages. In 50 per cent of the communities, Goodwill organizations receive subsidies from the Community Chest. Total subsidy received in 1956 was $1,500,000.

Regional director of Goodwill Industries in the Northwest, Marion Smith, accompanied Mr. Watkins on his trip here.

Among luncheon guests was Tom Sturgess, deputy minister of trade and industry, who promised the local organization "full support" in lining up contract work.

Woman 'Fair' After Being Pinned in Car

Saanich police today were forced to pry the steering wheel off the neck of Mrs. Betty Dorothy Bremner, West Saanich Road, when the small English car she was driving was in collision with a tobaccoist's van driven by John S. Griffin, 1830 Crescent.

The victim was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital suffering severe cuts to throat and chin, plus multiple lacerations. She was reported in "fair" condition.

The accident took place about 10:45 a.m. when Mrs. Bremner was coming towards Victoria on the West Saanich Road. Her car apparently skidded, about 2 1/2 miles the other side of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, and was in collision with the oncoming truck.

The road was slushy and extremely slippery at the time. It had been snowing in the area since 9 a.m.

About $250 damage was done to the truck while the car was a complete loss.

Two men were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by city police at 10:40 a.m. after the truck in which they were riding collided with a car at Herald and Government.

Harry Neufeld, 17, 619 Avalon, was treated for a cut head and his companion Robert Jue, 36, 118 Aloha, suffered a bruised arm. Both were discharged.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Under what conditions did the late Albert Einstein take up residence in the U.S.? G.L.D.

A. It was a voluntary move. On a visit to New York early in 1933, he declared he would never again set foot in Germany, his native land, while the country was still in the grip of Hitlerism. Events moved forward after that. After a stay in Belgium he moved to England. He delivered an address in Albert Hall, London, in October, 1933. In the autumn of that year the great move came, and he went to the U.S. as a voluntary exile. He was honored in the republic, and seven years later he became a U.S. citizen.

Q. What is the population of Sarnia, Ont.? D.E.

A. The federal census of last June recorded that well-known city had 52,493 within its city boundaries, showing growth of 11,190 since the 1951 census.

Single Centennial Project Urged On City Clubmen

Hugh Stephen, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, Thursday urged a meeting of service club representatives to support a major centennial project rather than scatter their fire on a number of schemes.

Sixteen delegates, representing 13 clubs, attended the meeting called to discuss a suggestion that their respective organizations get behind a major centennial project which has yet to be selected.

The members agree in principle to recommend to their clubs that they support "one project" to be chosen at a future meeting of service club representatives.

WHY GROW OLD?
By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Increased Attractiveness Will Improve Your Outlook

I know from personal experience with my figure molding classes and with thousands of letters from readers what a terrific impact increased physical attractiveness can have on a woman's personality and happiness, in fact on her whole outlook on life.

Sometimes we fail to realize what an effect overweight, complexion trouble, round shoulders or other defects in beauty have on us until we have lost them. After doing so we find ourselves feeling younger. We take up new activities and enjoy life more because we have more self-confidence and energy. We had not admitted to ourselves that we had unconsciously been avoiding social life or meeting new people, swimming, dancing or making a speech, because we were self-conscious about the way we looked.

We are human and therefore are likely to keep the rolls on us while the years roll over us unless we have the whip of necessity to get us over the hump. This may be the wish to look lovely for someone we love, to get ahead in a career, the determination to save our health or to get into a new dress!

Women also need assurance that they can accomplish a certain goal in a certain length of time. I long have felt that many women fail to attempt self-improvement because they lack information and because the whole venture seems so vague.

I bring you my eight-week self-improvement marathon once each year to give you that assurance and the direction you need. I choose the first of the year for my marathon because your new year's resolutions are still hot, and also because most of us gain weight over the holiday seasons. In my marathon booklet you will find help in calculating your ideal weight but today let me enlarge on this. Not your weight, just the weight information! Remember that you must take into consideration not only your bone structure but your muscle development. For instance, an athlete may weigh far more than any chart says he should but may not have an ounce of fat on him. So, if you have good long, well-developed muscles, you can allow yourself more weight, just as you can if you have a large frame.

If you would like to join marathon for a loss of 20 pounds in eight weeks' time, or if you wish to banish or diminish any other defects you may have, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my marathon booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Tomorrow: "Readers' questions about marathon are answered."

SHOPPING GUIDE

A Clear, Complete List Makes Shopping Trip Easy
By PENNY SAVER

Whether it rains or snows or the sun shines, food shopping is a "must." On the dreary days it is sometimes a real effort to don shopping togs and prepare for the trek, but if you set out with a clear list in your hand, the job is made easier. Decide now what you'd like to have for weekend dinners.

Vegetables to make the meals interesting will take up much of your list. White, always tasty cauliflower sells at about 30 cents each. Broccoli, an excellent winter vegetable, has dropped a bit in price and is now 19 cents a pound. Some stores are stocking Yukima turnips, because shipments from Alberta have been held up by the CPR strike. Other stores in the city are still stocking locally grown turnips, of excellent quality, at four pounds for 25 cents.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

About a house guest bringing towel and soap:

I had been invited by a friend in another city to spend a weekend at her home. I knew I would be taking a bath while there, so I packed my own towel and soap, not knowing how my hostess would feel if I used hers. She was insulted. Was I wrong?

Louise Davis Answers:

You shouldn't have taken your towel and soap any more than you would have taken your own table napkin. The worse offender was your friend who was insulted. She should have realized that you were trying in your own way to be considerate and thoughtful. You meant well and she should have appreciated it and overlooked it. The next time you visit anyone, leave such things at home. Think it over and imagine yourself having a weekend guest. It would be nothing at all to get out an extra towel or two and a wash cloth for your guest's convenience. When family and guest use the same bathroom, they generally use the same soap which has antiseptic qualities. So an extra bar for a guest isn't necessary.

Also local are green peas priced at 25 cents a pound and two pounds for 45 cents, depending on where you shop. Sprouts are about the same price as they were, two pounds for 45 cents. Green beans are 35 cents a pound, and green cabbage has gone up a bit, to three pounds for 33 cents.

For a change, you might enjoy egg plant at 35 cents a pound or leeks at three bunches for 29 cents. New potatoes are two pounds for 23 cents. Carrots, to be served cooked or raw in your salads are two bunches for 23 cents. Speaking of salads, Saturday's lunch could be taken care of neatly and tastily with a big, summery, tossed salad. Green onions at 12 cents a bunch. It's a little high, but they're necessary for most good salads.

Romaine is 19 cents, and radishes are two bunches for a quarter. Lettuce costs from 15 to 20 cents a head, and celery from 29 to 35 cents a stalk. Endive costs 10 cents a head.

Oranges are very popular during these winter months. Sweet tangerines are still around, at 49 cents a dozen. Marmalade oranges for you energetic cooks are two pounds for 27 cents. Navel oranges for juice or snacks are two dozen for 59 cents, and 39 cents a dozen, depending on size.

Delicious apples are two pounds for 29 cents, and bags of Fancy Delicious are 65 cents. Macintosh apples are 59 cents a bag. A centerpiece of colorful fruit would be pleasant for a change. Almira grapes, fun to nibble on, are 38 cents a pound and emperors are two pounds for 49 cents.

Gordon Report
Stirs Big Storm

'Plan for Future' Raises Ire
In Ottawa; Howe, Gardiner Angry

By VICTOR J. MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent
OTTAWA — Exploding on the Canadian political scene like no other document in modern times the Gordon Economic Commission has stirred up furious controversy within the cabinet and among Members of Parliament. It has brought bitter denunciation of some of its recommendations from MPs and some cabinet ministers.

The possibility of Walter L. Gordon, chairman of the commission joining the cabinet appears to have faded, if indeed there ever was such a possibility, one cabinet source suggested this afternoon.

Others claimed that the speculation in the press that the 50-year-old Toronto accountant might be invited into the cabinet was not founded on fact. No invitation had been extended and none was expected to be forthcoming, now that Mr. Gordon was publicly identified in the report with views that are contrary to government policy.

Prairie Members Disturbed

Maritime members did not know whether to be highly indignant on the suggestion that there may be a need for depopulation of the Maritimes, or whether to enthuse over the bold proposals for economic rehabilitation of that area.

Prairie members reacted hotly against the proposals for agriculture and the implication that agriculture would decline in relative importance in the Canadian economy. They were concerned that the commission had appeared to relegate agriculture to a "state of permanent depression." But the suggestion that there should be advance payments on farm stored wheat found enthusiasm among some prairie members.

Will Be Election Factor

Thousands of political speeches in this election year will be based on the report.

The report produces scores of new ideas. In this regard it will be regarded by Opposition members as an invaluable document on which to base assaults against the government. Not only will it provoke controversy but it will stir up new plans and new ideas for approaches to old problems among the government members as well as among the Opposition.

The future of Mr. Gordon, the commission's chairman, aroused immediate speculation. Veteran parliamentarians predicted that the report and the views it expressed would end all chance of Gordon's joining the cabinet until at least both Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport and Rt. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, leave.

Plane Saboteur Dies
Tonight in Gas Cell

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP)—This is the last day of life for John Gilbert Graham, condemned slayer of 44 persons.

Graham was sentenced to die for the murder of his 53-year-old mother, Mrs. Daisie King.

She was one of the 44 persons aboard the United Air Lines plane blown to bits Nov. 1, 1955, over northern Colorado. Graham planted the bomb in hopes of collecting his mother's insurance.

The 24-year-old Graham had no special requests on the eve of his execution in the gas chamber.

Warden Harry Tinsley quoted the father of two children as saying "he'd just as soon" have the same food as other prisoners.

Another visitor was Rev. Lloyd C. Kellams of Lakewood Methodist Community Church in suburban Denver, where Graham and his wife, Gloria, were married in 1953.

3 Judges to Probe
Issue of Firemen;
Trains Roll Saturday

From CP and BUP dispatches
OTTAWA — Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today in the Commons that the CPR firemen's strike has been settled. He made the announcement at 5 p.m. (2 p.m. Victoria time.)

He said it was settled through agreement to submit the issue of use of firemen on diesels—main point in dispute between the CPR and the union—to a three-man commission.

"Transportation services will be resumed forthwith," the prime minister said.

Mr. St. Laurent said it is understood that immediate notices will be sent to all concerned. Services would resume not later than daylight Saturday.

He said the commission will be composed of three judges. They would have the benefit of any advice required from the federal board of transport commissioners and any other sources they deemed necessary.

They would present their report not later than Oct. 1. Mr. St. Laurent made the announcement shortly before 5 p.m. EST after conferring earlier with president N. R. Crump of the CPR and union officials.

The strike started Jan. 2. He said the report of the commission would form a basis for a negotiated settlement of the issues between the disputants.

Mr. St. Laurent said he appreciates the "serious and genuine efforts" by both parties to eliminate the differences that caused an interruption in railway service.

FILES TO BE OPENED

The Board of Transport Commissioners' files will be opened to the enquiring judges, if they want them, the Prime Minister said.

The inquiry will be made under the Inquiries Act, making the three-man board a federal royal commission.

Mr. St. Laurent said an agreement "shall be entered into by the parties concerning the present diesel rule, arbitrations, and mountain differentials, and shall be subject to renegotiation in the light of the advisory report of the commission."

This was essentially the plan Mr. St. Laurent advanced in the House Wednesday.

The findings of the inquiry will not be binding on the disputing parties, but Mr. St. Laurent told the House Thursday he was sure that the results of a full public inquiry would carry such weight of public opinion behind them that they would strongly influence the union and company positions.

Members of the House cheered and applauded the prime minister with prolonged desk-thumping.

CPR officials in Montreal said later the railway may have some trains operating within a matter of hours over lines left idle for nine days.

A CPR spokesman said that to get the giant 17,000-mile railway system back into operation an immediate call will go to all workers asking them to be ready to report back to work.

In Victoria, E & N Railway officials were meeting today, presumably to arrange for resumption of rail traffic on Vancouver Island Saturday.

PM TAKES ISSUE WITH PROBERS

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today took issue with the sweeping proposal by the Gordon royal commission to control western wheat surpluses by guaranteeing prices only for pre-announced quotas.

He said in the Commons that recommendations dealing with the Canadian wheat board did not reflect a "proper conception" of the role of the board as set out by parliament.

The prime minister volunteered the comment after William Hamilton (PC, Montreal-Notre Dame de Grace) asked whether he had studied the commission's interim report before it was tabled in parliament Thursday afternoon.

ARTS SURPRISED HIM

"Mr. St. Laurent said he had read the report earlier when it was submitted to the government. He added that some portions "rather did surprise me."

The commission apparently had a conception of the wheat board's role "that didn't fit with my conception of what the role of the wheat board was."

Mr. St. Laurent's comment appeared to throw cold water on one of the major proposals on agriculture put forward by the royal commission which the government set up 18 months ago.

Mr. St. Laurent also told Commons the government has no present plan to implement the commission's economic blueprint for Canada's next quarter-century.

But he left open the possibility of legislation embodying some of the suggestions may be introduced before this parliamentary session ends.

The accident occurred as Kendrick was walking across Redford Street to the car of a friend.

Eden Quits Commons Seat;
... Doesn't Want Earldom

(See Also Page 3)

LONDON (CP)—Sir Anthony Eden resigned from the House of Commons today, two days after stepping down as prime minister.

Eden, who was succeeded Thursday by Harold Macmillan, was offered an earldom, the customary award made by the sovereign to a retiring prime minister.

Reuters news agency said it was learned that Eden had declined the honor, possibly because a hereditary earldom would disqualify his son Nicholas from membership in the Commons on succession to the title.

Nicholas is not an MP but has run for election in the past. Leaving the Commons seat he had held for just over 33 years, Eden again pleaded ill health as he had when he resigned the prime ministership two days ago. The 59-year-old Eden had represented Warwick and Leamington, a Midlands constituency, since December, 1923.

"I do not feel that this important constituency, so characteristic of our national life, should be represented by anyone who is not fit and able to give his full time to the task," said Eden.

GREAT HUMANITARIAN GONE

Ernie Fought For Underdog Right to Last

Ernest Edward Winch, a bricklayer who became one of the most-admired members of the B.C. Legislature, died today in Vancouver General Hospital at the age of 77.

When Mr. Winch was 75 years of age he declared he was stricken by a heart attack a week ago.

He held true to that statement by working for the many charities he supported, his constituency of Burnaby, and his ever heard in the provincial beloved CCF party until legislature.

Both Elected on First Attempt

They were both unemployed and on relief in 1933 when the CCF first contested an election in B.C. Father and son were elected in Burnaby and Vancouver East the first time they ran for office.

The father-son record of service was the longest in the British Commonwealth. They sat together in the legislative chamber until 1953, when Harold, resigned and later was elected to Parliament as member for Vancouver East.

Their combined 23 years and four months of legislative service easily surpassed the former record of Britain's Joseph and Austen Chamberlain. With Joseph's death July 2, 1914, a partner of 22 years less two days in the British House of Commons was ended.

In those early days when he gave up bricklaying for socialism, Mr. Winch once recalled, he hid Rev. J. F. Woodsworth, founder of the federation, under a bed because he thought the RCMP were looking for him.

Born in England, Mr. Winch attended an "ordinary village school" and moved to Canada when he was 19.

Outspoken both inside and outside the Legislative Buildings at Victoria, he devoted a major part of his career to trying to get better conditions in provincial jails and mental institutions.

Working on New Plan for Addicts

Shortly before his death, Mr. Winch visited California and Texas where he studied prison conditions.

He had intended to present a plan to the legislature next month on issuing free drugs to narcotics addicts.

Mr. Winch fired criticism at anyone he thought deserved it. "There's too many of 'em now," the white-haired member said once in opposing plans to start medical and law faculties at the University of B.C.

He worked hard to have the Crease Clinic, a preliminary treatment centre at the provincial asylum, established. He complained bitterly at one time of conditions at Oakalla Prison Farm, vigorously opposed capital punishment, and fought for better housing for pensioners.

There was a strong bond between Mr. Winch and Harold, but they were careful to avoid treading on each other's toes politically.

He visited every hospital, jail, asylum, home for the aged and orphanage in the province and asked more questions in the House and brought in more private bills attempting to right things he considered wrong than any other member.

As the years went by, his energy didn't seem to fade. At the election last Sept. 19, when the Social Credit government returned to power with increased majorities and seats, Mr. Winch still topped the poll in Burnaby riding.

Always Fought for the Underdog

He was a great humanitarian, and always fought for the underdog. Harold was hit over the head by RCMP during the hunger marches of the 30s, and the elder Winch never forgot it. He could be harsh and biting with his criticism of the system which he did not think provided all the social services people should have.

Mr. Winch always claimed that to be a true Christian, a man had to be a socialist. He made politics a crusade which he carried on for the benefit of the aged and infirm.

In addition to his fight for constituency of Fernie, Mr. Winch was the oldest member of the legislature.

It was announced in Ottawa today that Harold had left for Vancouver by plane immediately on hearing of the death of his father.

Survivors include his widow, three younger sons, Charles and Alan in Vancouver and Eric at Parksville; two daughters, Mrs. Grace Rideout and Mrs. Cedric Cox of Burnaby.

His greatness in B.C. life probably lies in the fact that while he went into the legislature a fighting radical, almost hated by many people, he stayed to be respected as one of its senior MLAs and a kindly gentleman.

Though he never got into the seat of government, he left a lasting mark on much of the social legislation of the day.

Winch's Death Great Loss, Says Premier

Outstanding political leaders in B.C. today paid high tribute to Ernest E. Winch, veteran member of the B.C. legislature who died in hospital today in Vancouver.

In a voice choked with emotion, Premier Bennett spoke of Ernest Winch as "one of British Columbia's finest public servants, respected and esteemed by all parties in the House."

"In all the years I have known him he has never once taken a purely partisan attitude to any public issue. At all times he was chiefly interested in men and women in difficulties... people who had fallen on hard times... people in institutions, hospitals or penal institutions. It did not matter who or what they were, they were human beings to Ernest Winch and humanity was his first and foremost consideration."

More than once the Premier faltered and was on the point of breaking down.

"The political record by any standards was a splendid one," the premier continued.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said his passing would be deeply felt by all sides of the House and by all political parties in the province.

Health Minister Eric Martin: "His career rose above politics. He was devoted to human welfare. We shall miss him greatly during the coming session and for many sessions to come."

Former CCF provincial leader Arnold Webster said: "Ernest Winch was more than an advocate, he was a builder, and to the end he continued to work with persistence and intelligence for the great cause to which his life was dedicated."

Arthur Turner, CCF member of the legislature for Vancouver East, said: "His death comes as a great shock, and I know of no one who can fill the place in public life so ably occupied by Mr. Winch for so many years."

Robert Strachan of Nanaimo, CCF provincial leader, was in Vancouver to attend a meeting when Mr. Winch died.

"It was with a sense of loss and regret that we heard of the passing of Ernest Winch," he said. "For 23 years he gave his all, not only for the CCF party but for B.C. as a whole."

"His work on behalf of our less privileged citizens, the sick, the elderly, will stand as a monument to a man who believed that a better world was possible and did his share to create that world. B.C. has lost a worker, the world has lost a citizen. All his life Ernest Winch had a cause, a worthwhile cause, and neither war nor depression could shake his belief in what was right."

The CCF leader said "although Ernest has gone, he will always remain as a living example of dedicated effort."

P. A. Gibbs, Liberal MLA for Oak Bay: "Ernest Winch passes from this world at a venerable age after a full life given unflinchingly to community service... I shall remember Ernest Winch as a man whom I believe thought and lived the Golden Rule."

... EDEN

Near the top of Macmillan's agenda as he made plans for a reshuffle of the Conservative government cabinet was the question of a post for Richard A. Butler.

Butler, leader of the House of Commons under Eden, and believed in line for Eden's post, was reported willing to serve Macmillan in a similar capacity. But Macmillan was said to be toying with the idea of Butler succeeding Selwyn Lloyd as foreign secretary.

If Butler remains as government leader in the Commons, Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd is suggested as a possible man for the foreign office.

Butler said he "will definitely serve in the new cabinet, although the office I shall hold has not yet been decided."

In a recorded broadcast Thursday night, Macmillan said he is forming a government which he will present for the Queen's approval "in a few days."

He paid tribute to his "old and very dear friend, Anthony Eden," and appealed for united support.

"We have a difficult task before us," Macmillan said. It will need all our courage and strength, and it will need the sympathetic understanding of everyone in the country, whatever their party or beliefs."

NO ELECTION PLANNED

The Labor party issued a demand for a new general election, declaring the "whole country should pronounce its verdict" on the changes in the political lineup.

But Macmillan replied, "no. If there was an election, we would win it." The Conservatives' term normally would not expire until April, 1960.

Macmillan, oddly, became prime minister by the workings of a strange political contradiction.

He came to power largely because he supported the cause that helped bring the downfall of Sir Anthony—the abortive Suez intervention.

STICK WITH POLICY

Most Conservatives had acknowledged it might be inevitable to sacrifice Eden to world opinion.

But they didn't want it to look as though Britain were turning its back on his Middle East policies.

Butler has been pictured all along as out of sympathy with Eden's decision to use force against Egypt.

Mayor, Smith In Sharp Clash

Tempers flared at a special meeting of City Council Thursday as Ald. Don Smith charged Mayor Percy Scourrah with premeditation in returning the trade licence issue to committee.

The mayor twice ordered him to "sit down."

The uproar began suddenly as Mayor Scourrah officially announced what everyone has known since Wednesday—Ald. Smith had resigned as chairman of the trade licence committee and Ald. Austin Curtis had taken over as chairman.

An expression of disappointment in Ald. Smith's action by Ald. M. H. Mooney brought the statement from Ald. Smith, "the fight has just started."

ALREADY DONE

Addressing the mayor he charged: "You have set up a new committee, a place to keep business tax discussions off council. It was premeditated. You had already set it all up."

"That is not true," said the mayor.

He explained no member of council had ever expressed opposition to trade licence revision.

"That's the full story, sit down." Council, shocked into silence, ratified the new appointments and turned to the matter of wage requests.
